

Prime Rib for Nixon and Thieu

Washington

President Nixon and the Western White House are not taking part in the meat boycott and a very expensive cut of beef was on the menu for dinner in honor of visiting South Vietnam President Thieu.

The main course listed for the small dinner party last night at the Nixon seaside villa in San Clemente, Calif. was roast prime tenderloin of beef.

According to the White House, the menu also included totoaba (sea bass), one of Mr. Nixon's favorite foods, cheese souffle, garden vegetables, artichoke hearts vinaigrette. The dessert was baked Alaska.

And there were three French wines: Corton-Charlemagne, Chateau Lafite Rothschild and Dom Perignon champagne.
