One of the stories the 1973 graduates of the Columbia Graduate School of Journalism are telling as they search for jobs is about an editor on The Philadelphia Bulletin who came to the campus in March to interview them for job possibilities. A few weeks ago, the editor sent letters to about 40 of the Columbia students who had applied telling them "the sad truth is that we have no openings and none are in sight." Then, the students, said, they read that The Bulletin had just hired David M. Eisenhower, President Nixon's son-in-law, as a sports writer. The student have sent a letter of protest to The Bulletin.
