

SFChronicle 6 Jul 73, filed W/gate: President Nixon had given Julie a choice of going out on the town or celebrating at home with family and a few friends. She thought it would be "more fun . . . more relaxing" to stay home.

Nixons' Quiet Holiday

San Clemente

President Nixon and his family celebrated the Fourth of July with a quiet dinner at the San Clemente Inn, near his Western home.

A chocolate cake with white icing was brought in to mark Julie Nixon Eisenhower's 25th birthday, which is today. With the President were the First Lady, Julie and her husband, David Eisenhower, Tricia and Edward Cox, and Bebe Rebozo.
