U.S.S.R. - AP, in report from Moscow, says Watergate was described by "a senior political commentator" as typical of the American political system. "Yuri Zhukov, the commentator, explaining Watergate on his widely viewed television program, said the essence of the affair was the break-in at Democratic party headquarters and charges that the White House promised clemency for the men who did it. The President has 'categorically denied' any wrongdoing and has 'appealed to Congress to make a full investigation,' Zhukov said. In addition, he added, Nixon has said he would turn over to investigators tape recordings of conversations with his assistants."

Impeachment - William A. Dobrovir and three members of his public-interest law firm say that "ample evidence" has already been gathered to support a criminal indictment against Nixon for 28 "common crimes," ~~and~~ that "the House of Representatives could, today, impeach Richard Nixon for these same offenses," and that "The evidence against Richard Nixon is ample to satisfy the standard of proof required to hold a defendant to answer at trial to charges made against him."

Their 169-page study, released a day after the ACLU issued its own handbook for citizen action in its drive to bring Nixon to trial, was financed by Stewart R. Mott, described by WXP as a millionaire who has been working to bring about Nixon's impeachment.
