Nixon (Haldeman) - "Nixon Has Doubts on Haldeman."

"Richard M. Nixon is beginning to question whether [Haldeman] always leveled with him.

"The questions have come up as Nixon has tried to patch together his memoirs. Without his presidential tapes and papers to jog his memory, he has had trouble reconstructing White House events. He has started to question former aides to help refresh his memory. The deeper he has delved, the more he has wondered aloud whether Haldeman kept him fully informed about crucial matters. He has dropped remarks indicating he has deep misgivings about Haldeman. ^{A.M.P.A.} _{A.M.P. - B.C.}

"Even before Nixon began doubting Haldeman, the tight bond that once linked these two men had been broken. They have not kept in touch with one another since Watergate sent Nixon into self-exile and threatens now to send Haldeman to prison. [Nixon] intends to invite Haldeman to San Clemente, nevertheless, to help him recall past events for his memoirs.

"Footnote: two former Nixon intimates who won't be invited to San Clemente are [Ehrlichman and Colson]. [Nixon] has broken all contact with both men, according to our San Clemente sources."
