The Major Events of the Day

International
 The Soviet Union joined North Vietnam's demand that the United States halt "violations" of the section of the Vietnam cease-fire agreement that banned shipments of armaments, munitions and other materiel into South Vietnam. The Soviet position, issued by Tass, the Soviet press agency, was the sharpest attack on the United States on the Vietnam issue in many months. [1:3.]

President Nixon is expected to decide shortly that the United States will provide Israel with $700-million in additional military aid, Administration sources said. It would supplement the $1.5-billion in weapons and ammunition that the United States has provided Israel since the Mideast war in October. [3:3-5.]

National
 President announced in a radio broadcast that he was establishing a committee to coordinate the nation's scattered programs for war veterans. He said, "To insure that we have policies that pull together the activities of the entire Government, and more fully meet the needs of veterans, I am today creating a new Domestic Council Committee on Veterans Services." [1:4.]

The pre-Presidential papers for which Mr. Nixon claimed a $576,000 tax deduction were called to eliminate "sensitive" documents, even though he turned the papers over to the National Archives with the specification that no unauthorized person could see them until after he left the White House. According to testimony to the Congressional Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, the items were removed from the 1,176 boxes of donated papers included "sensitive files respecting J. Edgar Hoover, Jacqueline Kennedy and the Vietnam War." [1:9:3-8.]

Interviews with a score of leading economists in recent weeks found not one who expected that the pace of consumer price increases would drop back to the 2.8 per cent average of the nineteen-sixties. Prof. Milton L. Friedman of the University of Chicago, predicts that three or four years from now inflation will be soaring annually 10 to 12 per cent, although most other experts expect less. [1:1-2.]
