

and Index

974

the Day

International Liberation Organization's leadership presented a political platform in Cairo that bars participation by a Palestinian delegation on the Middle East peace conference in Geneva if the issue of "legitimate rights of the Palestinian people" is not considered. This was one of 10 points in the platform that was submitted to the Palestine National Council, the 151-member group that serves as a parliament for the liberation group. [1:4.]

At the insistence of Saudi Arabia, the Arab oil ministers, at their meeting in Cairo, decided to keep their embargo against the Netherlands and to set up a special fund to offset deficits for higher oil payments by Arab countries which do not produce oil. As a condition for ending the Netherlands embargo, the ministers have been insisting on a clear statement of support for withdrawal of Israeli troops from Arab territory. Their embargo against Denmark is being continued for the same reason. No change in their attitude is expected before another meeting on July 10. [1:5.]

Shah Mohammed Riza Pahlavi of Iran has had plans to rebuild his country for at least a dozen years and with oil revenues pouring into the national treasury, he apparently now has the money to get them under way. The authoritarian Shah has begun a radical revision of his Government and of the content of the ambitious programs for his rich but underdeveloped country. [1:2-3.]

The Soviet press in its first significant comment on President Nixon's summit meeting in the Soviet Union since the opening date, June 27, was announced Friday, stressed that the meeting enjoyed the backing of Democrats as well as Republicans in Congress. The commentary in Pravda, following several other recent articles, indicated that the Russians had taken a view more favorable to the Democratic opposition because of a reassessment of the Watergate case. [1:1.]

National

The annual National Governor's Conference, which is being held this year in Seattle, opened with a panel of six governors—four Democrats and two Republicans—unanimously expressing the opinion that President

Nixon should give the House Judiciary Committee all the tape recordings and documents it has asked for in its impeachment inquiry. Watergate and the fate of Mr. Nixon's Presidency were generally the first topics of conversation, and there was an almost euphoric feeling that the Watergate case and the slow response of Congressional investigations have made the governors' state houses look good by comparison. [1:1-3.]

Many more people than in the past are planning highway trips to relatively close-in resorts, within 100 to 300 miles of their home, a trend that promises to bring crowding at many places near urban areas and plenty of room at more distant spots. This was typical of the opinions of people in the travel industry on the eve of the nation's annual summer vacation. Rising inflation, 60-cents-a-gallon gasoline and fresh memories of the gasoline shortage all may contribute to what may be the biggest change in vacations since World War II. [1:6-7.]

Metropolitan

City Controller Harrison J. Goldin, an increasingly frequent critic of the Beame administration, said Mayor Beame's proposed $11.1-billion expense budget would be $87-million in the red. He charged that over-estimated sales-tax and off-track-betting revenues by $28-million and underestimated spending by $59-million. [1:8.]

Members of Congress from New York, New Jersey and Connecticut revealed that their net worths varied from $22,761, reported by Representative Herman Badillo, Democrat of the Bronx, to $4.1-million reported by Representative Ogden R. Reid, Democrat of Westchester County. The financial reports were made in response to a request by The New York Times for information on net worth, income and taxes paid. The request was prompted by increased interest, both in and out of Congress, in the fiscal status of public officials, and financial-disclosure legislation now pending in Congress. Five of the six Senators in the tristate area responded. [1:6-7.]

The Long Island Rail Road has taken a long haul back from Teetering-on-the-Brink. Most of its 221,000 daily riders seem to agree that the improvement since the state took over the bankrupt line in 1966 is worthy of a salute. [1:5-7.]

The Other News

International Angolans learn to live with hostile neighbors. Page 2 British blast toll cut as villagers return. Page 3 Portugal's clergy accused of links to ex-regime. Page 3

Troops talks in Vienna inch ahead. Page 4 South Vietnamese pound force near Saigon. Page 5 Soviet mediation of Vietnam accord described. Page 6

Drinking is a problem in African cities. Page 8 Brazil is aiming for a high birth rate. Page 9

Bhutan King, 18, crowned amid pageantry. Page 10 Kissinger visit warmed U.S.-Syrian relations. Page 14 Israel and Syria cite progress on Golan pact. Page 14

Government and Politics Democrat favored in Coast House race. Page 21

Arkansas blacks expected to gain under Pryor. Page 21 Black Mayors preach political pragmatism. Page 22

After 10 years, forgotten politician looks back. Page 22 Ford likens tapes zig-zag to football strategy. Page 23

California Democrat says Nixon on used ethnic slur. Page 23 City Council has only 2 Puerto Ricans. Page 24

Bar group assailed for clearing Justice Bosch. Page 33 Changes in aid to medical training debated. Page 34

General French "invade" U.S. with thanks for D-Day. Page 7 The singing telegram makes its swoon song. Page 18

Symposium to analyze Nazi slaughter of Jews. Page 19 Tinderox near Boston seeks safer times. Page 20

Senator Buckley discusses his Alaska trip. Page 24 Exorcism charge splits a Coast town. Page 27

Male telephone operators on upswing. Page 29 10,000 Scouts spend weekend at Stony Brook. Page 33

Quotation of the Day

"I worked so hard as a candidate for Vice President, and it turned out so badly that I decided I'd never work again." William E. Miller, Barry Goldwater's running mate in 1964. [22:5.]

Business and Financial

Puerto Rican parade meets rain with "Vivasi" Page 33 687 in state pass bar examinations. Page 37

Prudential-Grace Lines to move to Brooklyn. Page 54 Industry and Labor Coast court urged to curb grape boycott. Page 32

N.A.A.C.P. finds few minorities in construction. Page 32 Education and Welfare Yivo institute given $1-million grant by U.S. Page 27

Health and Science Bomb test in 1954 still takes toll. Page 19 Soft water linked to heart attacks. Page 34

Amusements and the Arts A novel about a novelist is reviewed. Page 35 Jacob Lawrence reveals in success of black artists. Page 38

Film festivals become a world phenomenon. Page 38 Theater "summit conference" explores problems. Page 39

Litz dancers perform. "They All Came Home." Page 39 Phillip Glass's "Music in 12 Parts" is heard. Page 39

Lin Garber, baritone, is heard in recital. Page 39 Solid documentaries from CBS and P.B.S. Page 55

Going Out Guide Page 38 About New York Page 37 Family/Style Their children often play music before age 5. Page 26

Not a total role change, but a sharing of chores. Page 26

John Corry loves New York. Share it with him in About New York Monday, Wednesday, Friday The New York Times

Business and Financial

Intense legal battle rages at U.S. Industries. Page 47 Sugar prices, now high, head higher. Page 47

Credit markets' schedule is heavy. Page 47 Export subsidies stir official concern. Page 47

Jamaica adamant on bauxite tax plan. Page 47 Class of '49 revisits Harvard Business School. Page 47

Personal Finance: Wage assignments. Page 49 Advertising: Federal regulatory agencies. Page 50

Page | Page Advertising News: 50 Mutual Funds: 49 Dividends: 49 Personal Finance: 49

Sports Menne takes Kemper golf in playoff with Heard. Page 41 Salt Walther's brother dies in boat crash. Page 41

Yanks recall the "old days," rout Twins, 11-1. Page 41 Marathon runner loses his chance by six feet. Page 41

Trot trial over, but stigma is still evident. Page 41 Chris Evert wins Italian final; Smith bows. Page 41

Redman, in Lola, takes auto race in Ohio. Page 42 Greek American and Cosmos win in soccer. Page 42

Perry breaks no rules as he wins 9th, 5-2. Page 44 Mets' game with Astros is rained out. Page 44

Editorials and Comment Editorials and Letters. Page 30 Anthony Lewis discusses peace with honor. Page 31

Herman Hauschel posts "no sale" sign. Page 31 C. Fred Bergsten on oil and the cash flow. Page 31 James A. Brussel explains gun-carrying doctors. Page 31 News Analysis Flora Lewis examines Palestinians' role. Page 13