International

A substantial cutback in oil consumption by the main importing countries has been suggested by the United States as the first step in a strategy to force down world prices. Some European officials said Secretary of State Kissinger had mentioned a 15 per cent cutback at meetings in Washington with British, West German, French and Japanese ministers last weekend. [1:8.]

The Senate voted 41 to 39 to shelve the controversial foreign aid bill, at least until after the November elections. The effect was to uphold the Ford Administration. The vote came after critics of its foreign policy had forced through a series of restrictive amendments, including a ban on some clandestine activities of the Central Intelligence Agency. The legislation with its amendments goes back to the Foreign Relations Committee and may not revive this year. [1:1.]

Jordan's chief delegate to the United Nations General Assembly, Zuhayr al-Mufri, emphasized in addressing it that his country had a "special relationship" with the Palestinian people. He did not mention the Palestine Liberation Organization, the overall guerrilla group that claims sole right to speak for the Palestinians. There had been reports earlier that Jordan would back the group. [1:7.]

Israel's military situation as opposed to Egypt and Syria is stronger now than before the outbreak of the war a year ago, according to a Government study given to President Ford just before his recent talks with Premier Yitzhak Rabin of Israel. It warned that unless there was movement in negotiations, the odds were for renewed Arab-Israeli conflict, on a greater scale. [1:5-6.]

Richard A. Moore, a White House lawyer who was special counsel to former President Nixon, was named an unindicted co-conspirator in the Watergate cover-up case, according to sources familiar with the case. The addition of his name was apparently the result of conversations recorded on Presidential tapes recently turned over to the prosecution. [1:2-3.]

Ed Reinecke submitted his resignation as Lieutenant Governor of California and minutes later received a suspended 18-month sentence for lying to the State Judiciary
