

The Major Events of the Day

International

Three Arab oil-exporting countries, led by Saudi Arabia, lowered their oil prices while sharply increasing taxes and royalties paid by foreign oil companies. The purpose, they said, was to reduce the companies' "excess profits" and to help the world's oil consumers. The combined effect of the measure announced by Saudi Arabia, the United Arab Emirates and Qatar, however, appeared to rule out any over-all reduction in the cost of oil imports. [Page 1, Column 8.]

A new program of cooperation in food and energy resources as part of a "mutual survival pact" between developed and developing countries has been proposed at the World Food Conference in Rome by Richard N. Gardner, Professor of Law at Columbia University. He helped start the United Nations World Food Program for needy nations more than a decade ago. [1:6-7.]

Several dozen stone-throwing demonstrators protesting large increases in food prices smashed shop windows and looted in a slum area on the outskirts of Tel Aviv. They also damaged 10 buses and an undetermined number of private vehicles. The police arrested 31 persons, including Shalom Cohen, a former member of Parliament and leader of the Israeli Black Panthers, who describe themselves as the protectors of Jews of Oriental origin. [1:6-7.]

The British Government has no intention of pulling its troops out of Northern Ireland or yielding to demands for setting a date for withdrawal. This was disclosed in an interview with Marilyn Rees, the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland, who said that public opinion in England "has had enough" of the sectarian violence in Ulster and the frustrations over finding solutions. He said, however, that a withdrawal of the 15,000 British troops would lead to a "real civil war" between the Roman Catholic minority and the Protestant majority. [1:5.]

The workers at Hunfos paper mill in Kristiansand, Norway, are the subject of an experiment in a reform effort throughout Norway and Sweden to make work more challenging and more satisfying for workers in all kinds of employment. Let each worker have a measure of autonomy over what he does and where and how he does it, and his creative energies will be released, the theory says. He will not only do more work, but will also do it more intelligently and more contentedly it is believed. [1:1-2.]

National

The national coal strike has begun. It was scheduled to start at midnight tonight, but it was partly under way late Friday when Lloyd Johnson and three other men were the only ones reporting for work at a mine north from the little town of Ohley in the coal country of West Virginia. They are not expected to go back to work for at least two weeks, but there are many miners who predict that no more coal will be dug until 1975. [1:1-2.]

At the Yale Bowl in New Haven, Joe Namath threw a 5-yard touchdown pass to Emerson Boozer at 6:53 of sudden-death overtime and the New York Jets ended a six-game losing streak with a 26-20 victory over the New York Giants. It was the first regular-season, sudden-death victory since the National Football League instituted the overtime rule this year. [1:4.]

Metropolitan

A basic question in the conflict within the city's taxi industry—beset by inflationary economics that have sent fares up and quality of service down—is whether the large fleets that have dominated the industry can or should survive. Fleet critics contend that the recent 17.5 per cent fare increase was necessary only to preserve the fleets, and that owner-drivers did not want it. [1:1-2.]

"I decided to set an example and take my name off the list," said State Senator Mary Anne Krupsek, the Lieutenant Governor-elect, when she announced she would not attend the Democratic party's convention in Kansas City, Mo., next month. "There are not enough women, there are not enough minorities, there is not enough geographical representation," she said. [1:3.]

Theodore W. Kheel, a longtime critic of the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey, proposes that it turn over the operation of its World Trade Center to private office-space managers. In a report to Mayor Beame, he also raises the possibility of selling the Trade Center. He was responding to a request by the Mayor, who had asked for a report on prospective issues for study by any new outside investigation of the agency. [1:49:1.]

The Other News

International

Kissinger and secrets: A reporter's notebook. Page 2
Commodity data system proposed in Rome. Page 3
Jordan said to arrest 3 officers in plot. Page 5
U.N. braces for arrival of Palestinians. Page 6
High court official slain in West Berlin. Page 7
Uncertainty stymies life in Cyprus. Page 8
Cuba's supporters seek votes at O.A.S. meeting. Page 10
Opposition to Ford visit roused in Seoul. Page 11
Buckley asks monitoring of Soviet pact. Page 13

Government and Politics

Pentagon is planning to add 3 Army divisions. Page 14
Budget office faces moves to cut powers. Page 16
F.T.C. criticized in House panel report. Page 17
Six law professors question Rockefeller loans. Page 19
Lawyers' squabbles enliven cover-up trial. Page 20
Liberal California Democrats win election. Page 20
Dole says Ford should "toughen up." Page 21
Democratic dispute parallels 1952 Burger case. Page 23
Arkansas winner gloomy over public pay. Page 30
Nassau, Suffolk corruption studies awaited. Page 51

General

Competition returns to gasoline retailing. Page 1
Bomb damages U.N. center in Los Angeles. Page 7
Hijacker slain, fugitive seized in F.B.I. stakeout. Page 12
Officials reply to protests on library closing. Page 31
Hard times hit Urban Coalition here. Page 31
Great Neck divided over its school chief. Page 31
Neighborhood program is speeding up. Page 31
Neighbors refuse to endorse methadone clinic. Page 32
Coin may be clue to Drake's California fort. Page 39
Part-time cab driver slain in Page 49

Quotation of the Day

"People are more willing now to think of their four years here as a time for introspection. They know they can wait to change the world after they leave."—Corbin Miller, a Princeton alumnus, commenting on the changes at Princeton. [This page, Page 3.]

Industry and Labor

Crucial period reported being gun in coal talks. Page 34
5,000 to protest importing of clothing here. Page 50

Education and Welfare

A "new" Princeton University emerges. Page 27

Health and Science

Russian Luna 23 rock-testing mission fails. Page 32

Religion

Woman celebrates holy communion at capital. Page 42

Amusements and the Arts

Wolf's "Future of the City" is reviewed. Page 33
Karajan and Berliners excel in Brahms. Page 40
Bob Fosse's "Lenny" arrives at Cinema One. Page 40
Pannovs dance before cheering Israelis. Page 40
Waverly Consort visits Renaissance era. Page 42
"The Boy Friend" is revived "dostly." Page 42
"Idiot's Karamazov" a zany musical. Page 42
Buchbinder, pianist, shows talents in debut. Page 42
Cunningham works danced in Boston. Page 42

Going Out Guide

About New York Page 40
Family/Style Page 50
Hakston shows short skirts on 7th Avenue. Page 24
Betty Friedan teaches course at Yale. Page 25
Spider Man helps children to read. Page 25

Obituaries

Egon Wellesz, composer, music scholar, teacher. Page 30
Business and Financial
South Korean unrest grows as economy slows. Page 47
Opinion is mixed on effects of coal strike. Page 47

CORRECTION

In the obituary of Sadie Schiffer Louis, a leader in Jewish philanthropy, that appeared on Saturday in The New York Times, her maiden name was given incorrectly.

Influx of bankers suits concern in Canada. Page 47
A.T.&T., Xerox plan issues totaling $1-billion. Page 47
Computer art aims to cut "antiseptic look." Page 47
Investor interest in utilities found lagging. Page 47
Personal Finance: Aids to managing money. Page 49
Page | Advertising News: 44 | Corp. Bonds: 44 | Dividends: 48 | Personal Finance: 49

Sports

Dolphins win, tie for lead as Bills, Patriots lose. Page 35
Sticky stuff helps Redskins beat Eagles, 27-20. Page 35
Amsparger stands by decision on field goal. Page 35
Canada is jumping victor at Garden show. Page 35
Lack of depth continues to hurt Knicks. Page 37
Braves beat Pistons despite Lanier's 45 points. Page 37
Kings win Rangers' respect with 2-2 tie. Page 37
Upsets shake college football, cloud bowl picture. Page 38
Ashe beats Okker in final of Stockholm net. Page 39

Editorials and Comment

Editorials and Letters. Page 28
Anthony Lewis discusses use of resources. Page 29
William Safire appraises Boston busing. Page 29
Victor Gold weighs power and responsibility. Page 29
John D. Marks advocates antide stabilization. Page 29
News Analysis
Edward B. Fiske assesses enrollment drop. Page 10