The Major Events of the Day

International

Aides to Prince Norodom Sihanouk, the Cambodian head of state, said in Peking that a mob in Phnom Penh killed Gen. Lon Non, younger brother of Lon Nol, head of the defeated Government, soon after victorious Communist troops took over the Cambodian capital nearly six months ago. The aides also reported that other leaders of the defeated Government were killed by firing squads. [Page 1, Column 1.]

Turkey held midterm parliamentary elections that could influence the political future of Cyprus and Ankara's relations with Washington. [1:2.]

Secretary of State Kissinger said that 90 per cent of the arrangements for a new accord with the Russians on limiting strategic arms had been concluded and that prospects were good for a full accord in a few months. The negotiations have been more complex than both sides had expected. [1:5.]

The Ford Administration, according to officials, has told the Chilean Government that the United States will attend a proposed meeting of the Organization of American States in Santiago next year only if the Chileans cooperate with an international inquiry into human rights in Chile. [9:1.]

Pope Paul VI canonized Oliver Plunkett, an Irish archbishop who was executed by the British in 1681 on a charge of treason. Speaking in English at a mass in St. Peter's Square, the Pope asked on behalf of the Irish people for "the precious gift of peace, so urgently needed today." [12:4-5.]

National

Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger set the stage for a defense-budget battle in the Senate in a letter to a Senate committee chairman. Mr. Schlesinger urged the Senate to approve a budget $2.6-billion higher than the $90.2-billion bill approved by the House. [1:3-4.]

As Emperor Hirohito spent the last full day of his official visit to the United States in Hawaii, thousands of his subjects took photographs of memorials to Americans killed at Pearl Harbor by Japanese pilots almost 34 years ago. Hawaii has become the main destination for Japanese tourists, and heavy Japanese investments in the islands have caused some controversy. [1:2-4.]
