

News Summary and Index

NYTimes TUESDAY, JULY 6, 1976 JUL 6 1976

The Major Events of the Day

International

President Idi Amin of Uganda said yesterday that Uganda reserved the right to retaliate in whatever way it could to redress what he called the aggression against it in the Israeli raid on Entebbe airport. In the first full account from Uganda of what happened at Entebbe Saturday night, President Amin indicated that he became involved with the hijackers only at the moment they requested landing permission last week. He also charged that Kenya and "other neighboring states" had collaborated with Israel in the raid that freed the hostages. Much of black Africa reacted to the raid with public condemnation, but considerable private admiration for the Israeli commandos. [Page 1, Column 4.]

The visit to the United States this week of Queen Elizabeth II will be Britain's most important contribution to the Bicentennial celebration. The Queen will start her visit in Philadelphia today, and will stop in New York on Friday. She will attend a state dinner at the White House tomorrow, which will be televised. [1:7-8.]

A number of leading advocates of political change in Spain refused to serve in the Cabinet of the Prime Minister Adolfo Suárez González, the successor to Carlos Arias Navarro, who was dismissed by King Juan Carlos I last Thursday. Mr. Suárez took the office at the royal palace in Madrid. He was a Francoist official who was in charge of Spain's only legal political party, the National Movement. The flight of liberals from government service was led by Foreign Minister José María de Areilza and Interior Minister Manuel Fraga Iribarne. [8:6-8.]

National

The nation's governors were told that state and local governments could be spared millions of dollars in welfare costs if the Federal Government would consolidate its public assistance programs, establish a national minimum welfare payment and require most welfare recipients to register for work. The recommendations were part of a report by a special welfare reform study group that was presented at the 68th National Governors' Conference in Hershey, Pa. The report urged the governors to join the associations of city and county governments in demanding that the Ford Administration and Congress make sweeping changes in welfare programs by 1977. [1:8-1]

Jimmy Carter had a talk with Senator Edmund S. Muskie at his home in Plains, Ga., and said afterward that the Senator from Maine was well qualified to run for Vice President on the Carter ticket. But Mr. Carter stressed that his decision would be made next week only after meeting with four or more other prospects. He said that he and Mr. Muskie understood that the invitation to Plains "didn't put either of us under any obligation." Mr. Muskie said that he had a "rather strong impression" that Mr. Carter was committed to expanding the use of oil and broad role a Vice President could have. [1:6-7.]

Metropolitan

The morning after New York City's Bicentennial festivities, the euphoria continued. Japanese seamen visited British ships, Scandinavians drank Irish beer on Eighth Avenue, and hundreds of thousands of visitors converged on the ships that played a big part in the Fourth of July celebration, jamming the waterfront wharves, anchored against the Manhattan skyline, the fall ships were still formidable. [1:1-4.]

While the ships of the International Naval Review and the picturesque high-masted sailing vessels of Operation Sail were on parade in New York Harbor, the Coast Guard kept a lookout for a one-man submarine that it feared might sabotage the day's events. The alert apparently had its origin in the efforts of George W. Klittridge, a retired Navy captain who built the $7,000 submarine, to find the man to whom it was sold in Maine last July but who reneged on payments. [1:1-3.]

New York City has had a slower decline in population than other major cities, but a greater decline in family purchasing power. New analyses of Census Bureau figures show that while the city had lost 4.1 percent of its 1970 population by mid-1974, St. Louis had lost 14.2 percent. Seven other cities lost 4.5 to 12 percent from 1970 to 1973. Meanwhile, the median real income for New York City families—based on constant dollars—declined by 4.5 percent to $10,921, from 1969 to 1973. The decline was only 1.3 percent, to $11,580, in the 35 other largest metropolitan areas. [1:1.]

The Other News

International

Ingrao, Communist, gets Italian legislative post. Page 2
Tito foe, seized by Yugoslavs, gets 20 years. Page 2
Israeli seeks to tighten air-line safeguards. Page 3
Israeli officials identify Air France hijackers. Page 3
African reaction to the raid into Uganda. Page 3
Deadline extension was crucial to Israeli raid. Page 4
Pilot gives account of Uganda raid. Page 4
Beirut battle stops Red Cross convoy. Page 6
Britons enthusiastic over Israeli rescue. Page 6
Swiss are chided on anti-aid vote. Page 9
Argentines shocked by slaying of 5 at church. Page 10
Lisbon challenged on new austerity measures. Page 10

Government and Politics

Ford sees "growing danger" of conformity. Page 14
Aspin sees U.S. Navy gaining over Soviet. Page 17
Blacks voice reservations about Carter. Page 21
G.O.P. governors swing little weight in race. Page 22

General

Hint for Op Sail "mystery" sub fizzles. Page 1
The national anthem: How does it go again? Page 1
Pullman's model town now urban frontier. Page 12
Celebration in Mount Vernon honors Zenger. Page 12
Historians still debate Revolution's meaning. Page 13
Virginia Beach revelers clash with police. Page 14
Census figures sum up 200 years of U.S. Page 15
Schuler seeks measure on Erie rail trackage. Page 22
Harris judge considered tireless, thorough. Page 28
Metropolitan Briefs. Page 29
Plan announced for Orthopedic Institute. Page 29
Poor New York apple harvest predicted. Page 29
Liberty is "bloody good" for gobs of sailors. Page 30
Crowds angry as Seaport Museum closes. Page 30

Quotation of the Day

"Frankly, I think it's an awful song for a national anthem. It's practically impossible for anybody to sing it."—Constance Allard, the great-great-granddaughter of Francis Scott Key. [1:2.]

Business and Financial

Bicentennial parade to go up Broadway. Page 30
Colombian ship gets 12,000 visitors here. Page 30
Urban neighborhoods unite to help themselves. Page 37
Water table threatens Brooklyn, Queens areas. Page 44
Education and Welfare
Business group backs federalizing of welfare. Page 15
Health and Science
Germans study hot-water heating. Page 26
Amusements and the Arts
"Showboat" opens at Jones Beach Theater. Page 18
Rudel and Mozart in Paris and Venice. Page 19
Jazz Fair on 52d Street is packed. Page 20
Concert on Ellington Lacks Ellington. Page 20
Electric guitar's night at jazz festival. Page 20
"Diplomacy for a Crowded World" reviewed. Page 23
Peter Duchin, the nonsociety society bandleader. Page 27
TV's Fourth of July coverage is exuberant. Page 45
Going Out Guide Page 20
Family/Style
Women on the Alaska pipeline. Page 16
Pinch the suckers on tomato plants? Page 16
Obituaries
Antonio Stonimski, Polish poet at 81. Page 28
Rosa Mondavi, president of Coast winery. Page 28

Sports

Kranepool sorry to see Mets' streak snapped. Page 31
Yanks fall in 9th and lose to Royals, 2-1. Page 31
Is Kuhn's veto an echo of baseball's past? Page 31
Killian warns on impact of Taiwan ban. Page 31
Foolish Pleasure wins by nose from Forego. Page 31
Roundup: Red Sox win, 11-2, for Tiant's 10th. Page 32
Olympic horse dispute has a bizarre twist. Page 34
Hunt reinstated as winner of auto race. Page 35
Columbia tennis clinics are proving successful. Page 35
Bettors not turned off by power failure. Page 36
Unbeaten Revidere wins by a head at Monmouth. Page 36
Wood, Field & Stream: It pays to be persistent. Page 36
Man in the News
Adolfo Suárez González, new Spanish Premier. Page 8
Editorials and Comment
Editorials and Letters. Page 24
Tom Wicker discusses haunting youth crime. Page 25
Russell Baker recounts newsman's hang-up. Page 25
Curtis Berger teaching lawyers compassion. Page 25
News Analysis
Edward Burks on dispute in Port Authority. Page 29

Garden Spot

Gardening is more fun when you follow the news of gardening every Sunday in the Arts and Leisure Section of The New York Times.

NOBPA