

The Major Events of the Day

International

Britain announced yesterday that it was going to cut Government spending next year by £1 billion, about $1.78 billion, by today's exchange rate, to protect the pound, rescue its budget deficit and sustain its fragile economic recovery. [Page A1, Col. 3.]

The United States men continued their domination in swimming at the Olympics Games in Montreal. Brian Goodell won his second gold medal by narrowly defeating his teammate, Tim Shaw, in the 400-meter free-style final. Goodell's time of 3 minutes 51.93 seconds was a world record. [A1:1-4.]

National

The House enacted the $4 billion public works bill that President Ford vetoed, but sustained the President's veto of legislation that would have delayed the closing of military bases. The House voted 310 to 96 to enact the public works bill, 39 votes more than the two-thirds majority needed to override the veto. The Senate on Wednesday voted 73 to 24 to overturn the veto. A vote of 270 to 131 in the House overrode the President veto of the military base bill, but the Senate vote of 51 to 42 was less than a two-thirds majority. [A1:8.]

Jimmy Carter, in New York City to present his views on how American business and industry would fare under a Carter administration, especially in relation to taxes, said that he would "depend very heavily on business leaders to help me in government." At a meeting of 52 leading corporate executives, Mr. Carter said that he would move cautiously on tax reform, emphasizing that he would not make substantive changes in "our tax law or propose any as President until at least a full year of very careful analysis." His hosts at the meeting were the chairman of the Coca-Cola Company, the Seagram Company Ltd., and the Ford Motor Company, and it appeared that a businessmen-for-Carter committee might be established. [A1:5.]

The White House rejected Ronald Reagan's charge that President Ford's campaign aides were using questionable "heavy-handed" methods to court uncommitted convention delegate votes by disclosing that the President had ordered Cabinet officers to spurn any attempts by Republican National Convention delegates to trade their votes for Government jobs or favors. The order went out early this week, the White House press secretary said. [A1:4.]

Law enforcement officials said that they were seeking Fred Newhall Woods of Portola Valley, Calif., and two of his friends for questioning in the kidnapping last week of 26 schoolchildren and their bus driver near Chowchilla, a farm town in central California. Mr. Woods is the 25-year-old son of the Fred N. Woods 3d, head of the rock and gravel company that owns the quarry in which the victims were held captive in a buried moving van. The friends were identified as James Schoenfeld, 25, and his brother, Richard, 22, the sons of a podiatrist in Atherton. [A1:6-7.]

The Viking I lander transmitted the first weather report from Mars to the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif. Except for the temperature, the weather seemed balmy: light winds from the east in the late afternoon, changing to light winds from the southwest after midnight. The maximum wind speed was 15 miles an hour, but the temperature range was from minus 122 to minus 22 degrees Fahrenheit. The chances of precipitation at any time were zero. [A1:1-2.]

The mass inoculation program against swine flu announced by President Ford nearly four months ago is running into increasing scientific and medical criticism and technical obstacles. There are suggestions that the plan may not be carried out on as wide a scale as originally proposed by Federal officials. [A1:6-7.]

Metropolitan

Sunday will soon be a shopping day at three of New York City's largest stores—Macy's, Korvette and Alexander's. The decision to stay open on Sundays followed the setting aside in June of the state's blue laws by the State Court of Appeals on constitutional grounds. [A1:1-2.]

A Brooklyn painting that was stolen from the Brooklyn Museum 19 months ago—the 6-by-13 inch oil "Still Life With Blue Cup," valued at $50,000—was returned undamaged and anonymously in the mail Wednesday. But a warning scrawled on the wrapper said that museums needed armed guards and suggested other thefts were coming. [A1:8.]

The Other News

International

Experts say terrorist methods are improving. Page A2

Dublin spreads hunt for British envoy's killers. Page A2

Sadat demands Syrian troops quit Lebanon. Page A3

Muslims form governing council in Lebanon. Page A3

Italy still without government after month. Page A3

Two banks accused on Arab boycott. Page A3

In Kashmir, a calm surface. Page A3

Ex-Salgon officers flee Laos to Thailand. Page A4

Government and Politics

Mrs. Chisholm urged as head of House Caucus. Page A5

Court backs states on welfare funds. Page A7

Amusement holds sway at City Hall. Page A12

Mondale to start Vice-Presidential campaign. Page B14

Ford is host to delegates from New York. Page B14

O'Dwyer lists labor leader backing him. Page B14

Beane to play a major role in Carter drive. Page B14

Diner owner from Carterland dines at "21." Page B14

Treasury opposes 39 special tax aids. Page D11

Army delays its selection of battle tank. Page D11

General

Southern prison reform plans opposed. Page A8

"Medicaid mills" assailed at hearing. Page A10

Real Estate: "New towns" reevaluated. Page A11

Brutality suit against Suffolk police dismissed. Page A12

Metropolitan Briefs. Page B2

Governor signs health spa bill. Page B2

Carey signs bill despite error by Legislature. Page B2

Free-food program's inspectors accused. Page B2

Some find children's center better than repete. Page B2

Bitter primary fight a prospect in Fairfield. Page B2

City's tree program slowing down. Page B3

New Haven train station gets new look. Page B3

Quotation of the Day

"I can't conceive of such unsportsmanlike conduct from such fine athletes."—Dr. Harold Henning, president of the International Swimming Federation, commenting on the Soviet threat to withdraw from the water polo competition after a defeat by forfait. [A16:8.]

Business and Financial

Harvard to return jade collection to Mexico. Page D12

Clash over polygraph erupts in Harris case. Page D13

Industry and Labor

Newspaper Guild wins at Washington Post. Page D11

Health and Science

How flu virus keeps scientists guessing. Page A22

Weekend

The city's night was made for music. Page C1

How to enjoy the Tanglewood experience. Page C1

Ken Page delights in "Guys and Dolls." Page C3

Martha Velaz sings reggae at Other End. Page C10

Rosegarden, drummer, is at Rainbow Room. Page C10

Canadian Ballet presents "Sleeping Beauty." Page C10

Revisiting the old movie palaces. Page C10

Restaurants. Page C11

For a noah, New York's the place. Page C12

Kirk back in form for concert at Beacon. Page C12

Voight plays Hamlet in Rutgers Workshop. Page C12

Jean Arp show enchants at the Guggenheim. Page C14

Courthouse sculpture dispute is a Federal case. Page C14

Touring flea markets in Amish country. Page C15

A Gallic Woodstock opens on Riviera. Page C16

The Hamptons—a guide to what's in. Page C17

"Miss Herbert" by Christina Stead reviewed. Page C19

Sports

Shift in winds could aid local anglers. Page A12

Goodell wins 400 freestyle; 2d gold medal. Page A13

Guyana sprinter's appeal to compete denied. Page A13

Water polo forfeit adds to Soviet Union woes. Page A13

South Africa ousted by track and field unit. Page A13

A's turn back Yanks, 6-5, on run in ninth. Page A13

Burns leads in Canadian open by a stroke. Page A13

Silverstone leads by shot in Jersey golf. Page A14

Steelers and College All-Stars play tonight. Page A15

Track and field events start at Games today. Page A16

Princess's opening ride is not so regal. Page A17

Notes on People Page A10

Woman in the News

Margery Gootnick, hospital dispute arbitrator. Page A12

Editorials and Comment

Editorials, Letters. Page A20

Tom Wicker suggests delay on wiretap law. Page A21

Norman Myers: more ways to skin a cheetah. Page A21

Bel Kaufman on importance of city libraries. Page A21