

Dean's Wife Gives Him Some Tea and Advice

WASHINGTON, June 25 (AP)—As John W. Dean 3d testified at the Senate's Watergate hearing today, his wife, Maureen, whom he married eight months ago, sat behind him.

She sat with her eyes fixed on her husband, fidgeting occasionally with the diamond rings on her hand.

Throughout his testimony, Mr. Dean seemed to anticipate his needs.

At one point, she handed him a cup of hot tea. Another time, she offered her husband a soft drink that had been given to her.

At one point, she scrawled a note to one of her husband's attorneys, who passed it to Mr. Dean. The note read: "I know you're conserving your voice, but be as forceful as possible."

6-26-73

Nyt