Schlesinger Wins Senate Approval As Defense Chief

The Senate yesterday unanimously approved the nomination of James R. Schlesinger, former head of the Atomic Energy Commission and Central Intelligence Agency, as President Nixon's third Secretary of Defense.

Schlesinger replaces Elliot L. Richardson, tapped by the President to head the Justice Department after the Watergate scandal swept Richard G. Kleindienst out of the office.

The senate gave its 91-0 approval after Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis.) withdrew his objection to the nomination. Proxmire had questioned Schlesinger's testimony to the Senate Armed Services Committee supporting the continued bombing of Cambodia and | Proxmire, possible renewal of the air war in Vietnam.

Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.) acting chairman of the Armed Services panel, said it would have been "very diffi-cult" for Schlesinger to take any other stand on the bombing, since it reflected administration policy.

Symington described Schlesinger as an "independent and courageous" administrator Schlesinger, 44, joined with the potential of becoming "a really great secretary if he uses his own judgement in these matters." The new secretary is an authority on weapngs.

Proxmire said he still was disturbed by Schlesinger's views on U.S. policy in Indochina, but that he had decided to vote for confirmation because of his general qualification. cause of his general qualifications.

In written question-and-an-

JAMES R. SCHLESINGER . . . succeeds Richardson

Shclesinger explained: "In general the only circumstances in which I could foresee any possiblity of renewed U.S. bombing of North Vietnam would be major aggressive actions by the North Vietnamese which would threaten South Vietnam. in obvious violation of the Paris agreements.
"I do not believe that such

Schlesinger, 44, joined the government in 1969 as assistant director of the Budget Bureau, where he built a repution as a cutter of spending for weapons systems. He headed the AEC from Aug_10, tic intelligence-gathering and had "no intention of partici-In written question-and-an pating in active political cam-swer testimony submitted to paigning."

> * MOMINATION? NYTIMET 22062.72