Nixon Aides Asked for 'Services'

New York

Gulf & Western Industries Inc. was asked last year to contribute "services" to President Nixon's campaign, company sources said yesterday.

They said the request had been first by Herbert W. Kalmbach, then the President's personal lawyers, and later by William L. Safire, a special assistant to President Nixon and now a columnist for the New York Times ...

Federal law prohibits a company from making any contributions to a political campaign.

Both Safire and Martin S. Davis, a senior vice president at Gulf & Western, a conglomerate whose companies include Paramount Pictures, confirmed yesterday that they talked about contributions to the campaign, but Davis said he could not remember if services had been specifically mentioned.

Other Gulf & Western executives said, however, that Kalmbach and Safire had solicited such services as campaign films from the company but they were turned down. United Press
