RICHARDSON SAID TO HAVE DECIDED TO LET ALLEGATIONS ABOUT AGNEW BE HEARD BY FEDERAL GRAND JURY

NYTimes. SEP 1 5 1973 REVIEW HELD AIM

Move Is Termed Not a Step to Indict Vice President Now

By ANTHONY RIPLEY Special to The New York Times

BALTIMORE, Sept. 14 . Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson has decided to let evidence against Vice President Agnew go to the Federal grand jury that is investigating charges of Maryland political corruption, Government sources in Washington said today.

The purpose of the move to the grand jury, the sources said, is to review the substance of the case assembled thus far by United States Attorney George Beall in Baltimore, and not to seek an indictment now.

No decision has been made by Mr. Richardson on whether the evidence collected thus far would call for an indictment. Nor has he ruled on the constitutional question of whether a Vice President can be charged with a crime or if he must be removed from office first.

The sources stressed that it was not a move to indict the Vice President but rather to look deeper into the evidence gathered thus far.

'Want to Make Sure'

"In a case of this magnitude, they want to make sure that they are not surprised [by unexpected evidence] and that what a witness says under oath before a grand jury is the same as what he says in the prosecutor's office," one source

The grand jury could decide on its own to bring an indict-ment against the Vice President. But before any such indictment could go to court, it would require the signature of Mr. Richardson or Mr. Beall acting with his approval.

Thus, Mr. Richardson still must face the two key questions on constitutionality and on the weight of the evidence before any legal action is taken against Mr. Agnew.

In Washington, John Hushen, the Justice Department spokesman, said there would be "no comment" on the matter. Until today, Mr. Hushen's office had said there was "no decision" on the two key questions. He would not explain the change in response except that he thought "no comment" was 'appropriate."

Grand Jury Meeting

In Baltimore, Mr. Beall told reporters this afternoon that there would be "activity" next week and that the grand jury would meet. He would not alaborate.

The 22-member panel, made up of 13 men and nine women, met yesterday for the first times in three weeks. Their meeting was held under unusually tight security precautions, Mr. Beall.

Continued on Page 16, Column I

Continued From Page 1, Col. 8 prosecutors.

conceded today.

Judah Best, one of Mr. Agnew's courthouse. lawyers, notifying him the Vice President was under investigatortion, bribery and conspiracy.

Agnew's successor as elected gnew's successor as elected son and his family.

Executive of suburban Baltifore County.

Mr. Anderson was arraigned day before Judge Joseph H.

The Andersons continued of the heavy before Judge Joseph H.

The Andersons continued of the heavy before Judge Joseph H. Executive of suburban Baltimore County.

Mr. Anderson was arranged today before Judge Joseph H. their journey in a taxicab. The Young of the United States Disdriver, Donald P. Cole, was trict court. He pleaded not guilty to a 39-count indictment that charges extortion, bribery and conspiracy.

Norman P. Ramsey, Mr. Anderson's lawyer, told the court that the plea was "not guilty of each and every count.

Judge Young set the jury trial for Jan. 7. Assistant United States Attorney Ronald S. Liebman told the court the trial would probably last four to six weeks. Mr. Anderson was released on personal recognizance.

Press Is Avoided

Mr. Anderson and Mr. Ramsey avoided the press afterward.
"The only statements I'm going to make will be in the courtroom," Mr. Ramsey said.
Earlier Mr. Anderson termed the charges against him the charges against him "phony" and a "frame-up."

Mr. Agnew has stated repeatedly that he has done nothing. wrong and has nothing to hide from his days as the Baltimore County Executive and as Maryland's Governor from 1966 to Agnew has described Mr.

Mr. Agnew has described some of the reports about him as "damnable lies."
The key witness against Mr. Anderson is William E. Fornoff, who resigned June 4, as the county director of administration, a post he held under both Mr. Anderson and Mr. Agnew. Fornoff pleaded guilty to an income tax charge and agreed to work with the Government against Mr. Anderson names onceded today.

In describing the move to the ments to the County Executive.

grand jury, one source said "This is no bombs-away decision."

The grand jury has been meeting since January and investigating political corruption in the state.

On Aug 1, Mr. Beall wrote the County Executive. After this morning's action in the courtroom, Mr. Anderson, his wife and a daughter hurried from the old Post Office Building where the courts are situated. They left in a chauffeur-driven county limousine that was then involved in a freak accident just outside the

A Freak Accident

Part of the undercarriage of tion for possible tax fraud, ex-tortion, bribery and conspiracy, truding manhole cover, and the On Aug. 25, the grand jury car stopped short, hurling the driver's head into the wind-shield and tumbling Mr. Ander-taken to Mercy Hospital with head injuries.

Mr. Anderson has been working half days at his post since Fornoff resigned in June. He has had recurrent health problems this year. He has call. lems this year. He has said he will not resign.

In a related development to-

In a related development to-day, the Maryland Department of General Services released a 1,500 page compilation of all state contracts handled by the state's Public Works Depart-ment for the years from 1962 to 1972.

They were requested by Mr. Agnew from Gov. Marvin Mandel, apparently in preparation of a possible defense for the Vice President.

The records review briefly the spending of hundreds of millions of dollars but do not include spending on state highways before 1971. Prior to that date, such contracts did not need approval by the Public Works Department.