whether to impeach President Nixon.

The committee did so by approving, as expected, a bill that would create a court—and introduced his bill, at this morning ing's hearings, as an amendment to the Republican-backed pointed special prosecutor and substitute bill providing for the by adding to the bill the requirement that the prosecutor provide the committee's leaders with any information "pertinent" to the President's possible impeachment.

Under the bill, which now back's amendment was progoes to the full House for consideration, the special prosecutor would be required to "recount That bill was introduced provide the committee's chairman and the crat of Missouri. That bill was introduced by William L. Hungate, Democommittee's ranking Republican as again, this time by voice vote. The vote on the bill itself—which provides that't the judges offenses have been committee's apanel of three which provides that'the judges to appoint the prosecutor or—followed.

And at the committee's request, the special prosecutor or—followed.

And at the committee's request, the special prosecutor or—followed.

And at the committee's request, the special prosecutor or—followed.

And at the committee's request, the special prosecutor or—followed.

And at the committee's request, the special prosecutor or—followed.

And at the committee's request, the special prosecutor or—followed.

And at the committee's request, the special prosecutor or—followed.

And at the committee's request, the special prosecutor or—followed.

And at the committee's request, the special prosecutor or—followed.

And at the committee's request the chairman and ranking mand or in peach where the country is now, 'said and representative Jerome R. Waldie, Democrat of California, speaking in favor of the provision's proponents.

Substitute Bill Defeated

Most of the Republicans on arch speaker, with the result that over and over during the provision's proponents.

Substitute Bill Defeated

Substitute Bill Defeated

Most of the Republicans on the committee had opposed court appointment of the special prosecutor, and indeed, 16 of the 17 members of the Republican minority had first voted, with one lone Democrat, in favor of a substitute bill calling for a special prosecutor but giving the Attorney General the job of appointing him.

This substitute was voted down by the 20 other Democratic members and the one remaining Republican.

The subsquent vote on the bill for a court-appointed prosecutor was a voice vote, with the chorus of "ayes" coming mostly from the Democratic side and the "nays" from the Republican side.

If this voting pattern con-

If this voting pattern con-

HOUSE UNIT VOTES

WATERCATE BILL

WATERCATE BILL

WATERCATE BILL

will be approved but with less than the two-thirds majority needed to override the Presidential veto that the bill is likely to bring.

Yet the amendment calling for the special prosecutor to provide information to the committee was introduced by a Republican, Tom Railsback of Illinois. The House Judiciary Committee is the unit that must initiate any impeachment proceedings. According to Mr. Railsback, the question of impeachment will probably arise befor the question of a criminal prosecution of Mr. Nixon arises, and the prosecutor's information could thus be helpful to the Judiciary Committee.

Watercate Bill

will be approved but with less than the two-thirds majority needed to override the Presidential veto that the bill is likely to bring.

Yet the amendment calling for the special prosecutor to provide information to the committee was introduced by a Republican, Tom Railsback of Illinois. The House Judiciary Committee befor the question of impeachment will probably arise befor the question of a criminal prosecution of Mr. Nixon arises, and the prosecutor's information could thus be helpful to the Judiciary Committee.

Vote Was 26 to 12

Mr. Railsback first in-