MISS WOODS SAYS SHE CAUSED 'GAP' IN TAPE BY ERROR

President's Secretary Tells Court of Her Erasure in Subpoenaed Recording

NIXON-HALDEMAN TALK

Sirica Gets Transcriptions for Protective Custody Pending Examination

> By LESLEY OELSNER Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26-President Nixon's personal secretary testified today that through some "terrible mistake" she had pressed the wrong button on her tape recorder and thus caused an 18-minute "gap" in one of the subpoenaed Watergate tape recordings.

She said that she had told the President of the error minutes after it occurred last Oct. 1 - and that he had assured her it did not matter.

Excerpts from a summary and analysis of tapes, Page 37.

"He said, 'There's no problem because that's not one of the subpoenaed tapes," secretary, Rose Mary Woods, testified in Federal Court here.

Mr. Nixon did remark that "it was too bad," Miss Woods recounted. But he told her that he understood, she testified, and said to her, "Don't worry about it."

Talk With Haldeman

The conversation whose tape recording has an 18-minute erasure—or "gap," as Miss Woods insisted on describing it was a discussion between Mr. Nixon and H. R. Haldeman, one of his former key aides, on June 20, 1972, three days after the break-in at Democratic head-quarters in the Watergate building:

The White House did not disclose the 18-minute gap on the tape until last Wednesday. It has maintained that it did not know that the conversation in question was covered by the subpoena until Nov. 14, a week earlier.

According to the White House,

there was an "ambiguity" in the subpoena issued by the special Watergate prosecution for the President's Watergaterelated tape recordings. As a result, the White House contends, the Presidential counsel first believed that the special prosecution wanted only the recording of an earlier June 20 Presidential conversation-one with John D. Ehrlichman, also a former Nixon aide,

Tapes Given to Judge

The White House today turned over the disputed tape recordings and other materials to Chief Judge John J. Sirica of the Federal District Court here, who asked last week, in the wake of the disclosure of the 18-minute gap, that they be given to the court for protective custody pending examination by technical experts.

Continued on Page 37, Column I

Continued From Page 1, Col. 8

With the material, the White House turned over as well a 22-page "index and analysis" of what it was providing the document, the June 20 conversation between Mr. Nixon and Mr. Haldeman included a discussion of Watergate-related public relations measures.

The White House was giving Judge Sirica Mr. Haldeman's "handwritten notes" of the meeting, the document said, and the notes "reflect that the President gave instrucions to Mr. Haldeman to take certain actions of a public relations character which related to the Watergate incident."

The United States Court of Appeals here, which ruled in October that the President must comply with the subpoena, had left open the possibility that Mr. Nixon could still make "particularized" claims of exe-cutive privilege regarding cer-tain portions of the material covered by the subpoena.

In its index and analysis today, prepared in accordance with the court of appeals' instructions, the President maintained that various conversa-tions covered by the subpoena involved non-Watergate matters and thus were privileged.

In discussing one of the dis-puted conversations, moreover, the White House said in the document that the talk should not be disclosed even though it involved Watergate. This was a conversation on June 30, 1972, by Mr. Nixon, Mr. Haldeman and John N. Mitchell shortly before the announcement that Mr. Mitchell was resigning as chairman of the Committee for the Re-election of the President.
"There are a few passing and collateral references to Water-gate which are not substan-tive," the document asserted. Judge Sirica must now rule on whether or not to accept the President's assertions of privilege.

Miss Woods testified today that Alexander M. Haig, the President's chief of staff, had told her on Sept. 29 that she need transcribe only the portion of the June 20 tape covering the President's discussion

The document presented by the White House, for its part, repeats the White House contention that it was believed "until Nov. 14" that the second portion of the tape was not under subpoena. The document also supports Miss Woods's introduced in court today, was statement that she reported her a model called the Universal nistake immediately, saying, 5000 produced by Urer. The incident was detected and The "record" button

"She could have rewound the machine at a very high speed while the "record" button was down," Mr. Madaris said. "It would only have taken a minute and a half to erase 18 minute problem and was told that there was an 18-minute gap.

Miss Woods has been Mr Nixon's secretary."

Miss Woods has been Mr. Nixon's secretary for 22 years, working for him and, when have had to be pressed for 18 meed be, fiercely defending him. Today, her face and voice "It wouldn't make much seeming sometimes tense and at other times appearing to be transcription of the tapes for mony, and drew from her the his future reading. He listened concession that when she testito the June 20 tape for just field before him on Nov. 8, she a few minutes that weekend, had made no mention of the she said, "pushing buttons back and forth." His comment, she said; was, "I don't see how of the Watergate prosecution to sne said; was, "I don't see how of the Watergate prosecution to you're getting any of this, it's so bad."

She spent the weekend working on the Ehrlichman portion of the June 20 tape, she said, and went back to the White House Oct. I with the task intermediate.

Since how are now of the Watergate prosecution to read from the Watergate prosecution to read from the Watergate prosecution to read from the Nov. 8 transcript what Miss Woods had said about "precautions" she had in the Watergate prosecution to read from the Nov. 8 transcript what Miss Woods had said about "precautions" she had in the Watergate prosecution to read from the Nov. 8 transcript what Miss Woods had said about "precautions" she had in the Watergate prosecution to read from the Nov. 8 transcript.

she was in her office listening to the tape and, waiting to hear some indication that Mr. Ehrlichman had left the room, she heard the beginning of the Haldeman-Nixon conversation, she related.

"I don't think I'm so stupid that they had to go over and over it. I used every possible precaution."

"What precaution?" Mrs. Vollner asked then.
"I used my head, the only one I had to use," came the answer. she related.

Then she said, her telephone rang. She reached to answer it, and, "through some error, in some way," she "pushed the record button down."

Miss Woods's testimony shout what followed was some about what followed was some-what confused. She said first that she did not know whether she had also had her foot on the foot pedal or whether the record button had instead ing the President's discussion stuck; later she said she "must with Mr. Ehrlichman. | have" kept her foot on the pedal.

minutes," then five that to "five and a half or six her conversation lasted "four or 2

She also said that she thought minutes."

The machine she was using,

and The "record" button is next to the "stop" button.

"The incident was detected and reported when made to the President, and shortly thereafter to the White House counsel, J. Fred Buzhardt."

At a briefing today, however, Gerald L. Warren, deputy White House press secretary, White House press secretary, leave erased the tape.

have erased the tape.
"She could have rewound the used by Miss Woods was not the Uher model, which would

"It wouldn't make much sense" to use a different foot seeming sometimes tense and at other times appearing to be annoyed, she gave an account that observers considered as favorable to the President as the situation allowed.

Transcribed Tapes
She said that she was with the President at Camp David the President at Camp David the last weekend of September, and that her task was the transcription of the tapes for mony, and drew from her the his future reading. He listened concession that when she testi-answer.

Miss Woods is to testify

lagain tomorrow.

J. Fred Buzhardt Jr., Presidential counsel carrying Watergate tapes, and Rose Mary Woods, personal secretary to Mr. Nixon, arriving at court in Washington yesterday. Accompanying Miss Woods is Charles S. Rhyne, her attorney.