Nixon Checkup

Set for Saturday

President Nixon will undergo his annual medical checkup Saturday morning at Bethesda National Naval Medical Center where he spent several days last July recovering from a bout with viral pneumonia.

The chief executive, who will be 61 years old Jan. 9, was expected to spend about two hours at the hospital.

Mr. Nixon mentioned the checkup at a stag party for his personal physician, Dr. Walter Tkach, Wednesday night. The chief executive usually undergoes the examination and series of tests in late December, but the date was advanced because Dr. Tkach is leaving Dec. 18 for his wedding 10 days later in California.
