But the media are a pack of jackals around him

They are: (1) Controlling too much of his time, (2) Turning the American people against him, and (3) Degrading him and his high office.

(1) They control his time by publicizing a stream of inmuendos, rumors, reports, charges against him. If igmored, they attain, particularly in this Watergate setting, the force of fact, so he must constantly deal with them.

(2) They turn the country against him by constant slanting of the news. Recent example: The 9 A.M. October 23rd NBC Summary of the then just concluded vital one-hour telecast of former Attorney General Richardson's news conference was completely one sided, mentioning not one of the several things there said in the President's favor. We submit that a major reason the conference did not take the heat off the President was because NBC said it didn't.

(3) They degrade him and his office in ways both subtle and obvious, too numerous to specify.

feelings of loyalty and are spreading the immunity They have immunized themselves against all

Every president's right to our loyalty is non-forfeitable. Whether we voted for him or not, he is entitled to it for as long as he discharges the awesome responsibility of that office, regardless of the charges against him. So, we say to NBC, CBS, ABC, and some of the radio stations and publications: Go see The Caine Mutiny again, for if there was ever anyone who deserved the scathing, contemptuous rebuke the Defense Attorney gave the junior officers as they were crowing about the broken captain they had destroyed, you deserve it.

Is the pot calling the kettle black?

And what's it all about? The President's supporters illegally spied on the Democratic Headquarters. They obtained nothing of value and the incident had no bearing on the election. Then, they tried illegally to cover it up, influenced somewhat by a climate toward that for which the President, long ago, admitted responsibility. Yet, the same Media who insist on famning and decrying this forever, right to do the same themselves: To have spies in places of trust who dishonorably leak to their Reporters confidential information, with them covering up the source. They, with others, insist the President bare his confidential files and proceedings, yet refuse to bare their source of many reports they publish

So, hang in there, Mr. President

You have already, with dignity, lasted more rounds than anyone should ask of you and have suffered punishment far beyond that which would be reasonable for any mistakes you might have made. You did not stop the Alaskan pipeline that would have made this national independent of foreign oil sources—but your opponents did!

So Who Do They Want for President?
