

Richardson

Joins Board Of League

Former U.S. Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson has joined the board of directors of the National Civil Service League, Mortimer M. Caplin, League president, has announced.

Noting that the League is "a citizen group working for quality and integrity in government," Caplin cited Richardson's stand on appointments and promotions based on merit rather than political ties.

Also named to the board were Jerry Klutz, former writer of the Federal Column column for The Washington Post, Harry Kranz, federal executive fellow at Brookings Institution, Randy Hamilton, dean of the Graduate School of Public Administration at Golden Gate University, San Francisco.

Also, Roscoe L. Egger Jr., director of federal services for Price Waterhouse and Co., T. Edward Temple, vice president for development and university relations with Virginia Commonwealth University in Richmond and former secretary of administration for the State of Virginia, and Evelyn Harrison, management consultant, former deputy director of the Bureau of Programs and Standards and assistant to the chairman of the Commis-