Tie-up Could Cause Food Shortage

By Jack Anderson

The oil shortage could be compounded this year by a food shortage, because food stocks have dropped to the lowest level in 20 years.

All it would take would be minor crop failures or transportation tieups to cause basic foods to start disappearing from the supermarket shelves.

Agriculture Department sources have told us the nation would be in "awful shape" for food if the delicate food delivery system should be fouled up.

The supplies of corn, pota-toes, peas, dried beans, canned peaches, pears and cherries have hit bottom. Cheese and butter supplies are low.

To strengthen the dollar abroad, the government has been exporting grains as fast as the farmer can grow them. Grain stocks are now so low that legislation has been introduced in the Senate to establish a national reserve system.

The meat outlook isn't much better. "A two-week tie-up in the transportation system could cause serious meat shortages," an Agriculture Department expert told us. "The meat delivery system has only about a four to five day flexibility. After that, the shelves would start looking bare."
