A DOUBLE DEFE OF NIXON DRAFTED

Lawyers Planning Rebuttal to Implications by Grand Jury on Hush Money

By JOHN HERBERS

WASHINGTON, March 5 White House lawyers are preparing a two-pronged defense against the implication in last that President Nixon may not would be wrong. have opposed hush money payments to the defendants.

The grand jury did not say The grand jury did not say directly that Mr. Nixon had approved such payments. But one of its charges against H. R. Haldeman, the former White House chief of staff, was that he lied when he testified under oath that the President said in a meeting last March 21 that "it would be wrong" to raise $1-million to insure the silence of the seven original Watergate burglars.

First, according to sources close to the White House, the lawyers are ready to argue that the province of the work of the seven and the work of the seven or girls are ready to argue that the presidents of Mr. Haldeman or the grand jury.

Mr. Haldeman or the grand jury. Mr. Haldeman or the grand ju lawyers are ready to argue that the President did use a phrase Continued From Page 1, Col. 7

Friday's grand jury indictments awarding of hush money also Watergate that he was against clemency on had remarked that "it would cy. When Mr. Dean came to him directly that Mr. Nixon had ap- iliar with Mr. Nixon's legal spokesmen nor his lawyers have made any public response to the indictments of Mr. Haldeman and six other Nixon aides, but the charges made in

White House counsel, and H. news conference said that Mr. R. Haldeman, the White House Haldeman's testimony had been million dolars—but the problem is it is hard to raise. The President said there is no problem raising a million dollars, we can do that, but it would be wrong."

chief of staff. Presumably, the generally accurate but that he jury's charge that Mr. Halde-had used "it is wrong" in con-The President was saying man lied when he said Mr. Nix-nection with executive clemenand the whole thing was be wrong" to raise hush money with the proposal for raising wrong," said one person famore, was based on the information money, Mr. Nixon said, "I said, on the tape, which has not been isn't it quite obvious, first, that and we have got to get this story out." It is in that context that the deman and six other Nixon aides, but the charges made in the course of a conversation to the effect that "It would be wrong." However, they said that although he used it in the context of a proposal to award executive clemency to the defendants he was also conveying his belief that "Continued on Page 22, Column 4" Members of the course of a conversation and six other Nixon aides, but the charges made in the indictment have aroused concern in the White House because, if sustained, they would enhance the prospects for Mr. Nixon's impeachment. The Watergate grand jury had in its possession a tape recording of the March 21 meeting between Mr. Nixon, John W. Dean 3d, then the charges made in the indictment have aroused conduction aides, but the charges made in the indictment have aroused conduction do that, but it would be wrong."

"Knew They Were False'

The grand jury, in indicting Mr. Haldeman for perjury, underlined the words "but it would be wrong" and asserted that Mr. Haldeman "knew they were false."

White House involvement in the Context that the President's lawyers are now saying that the President's lawyers are now the can do that, but it would be wrong."

"Knew They Were False'

The grand jury, in indicting Mr. Haldeman for perjury, underlined the words "but it would be wrong" and asserted that Mr. Haldeman "knew they were false."

White House president's lawyers are now the can do that, but it would be wrong."

"Knew They Were False'

The grand jury, in indicting Mr. Haldeman for perjury, underlined the words "but it would be wrong."

White House president's lawyers are now the can do that, but it would be wrong."

White House president's lawyers are now the can do that, but it would be wrong."

"Knew They Were False'

The grand jury, in indicting Mr. Haldeman for perjury, underlined the words "but it would be wrong."

White House president's lawyers are now the can do that, but it would be wrong."

"The watergate grand jury in indicting Mr. Haldeman "knew they would be wrong."

"The watergate grand jur