White House Hits Mills for Predicting Nixon Will Resign

By Lou Cannon Washington Post Staff Writer

The White House last night President acted properly in attacked Rep. Wilbur D. Mills taking federal income tax de-

Responding to a prediction dence. of the President's resignation made last week by the Arkansas Democrat, White House counselor Bryce Harlow said: "Mr. Mills should put up or shut up."

Last week Mills, who is vice chairman of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, which is studying Mr. Nixon's 1969-72 income tax returns, said the committee will issue a report that will give more cause for the President's resignation than anything to come out of

Talking to reporters on the sas congressman of engaging way during this 10-minute in "guilty by innuendo." He said that 20 years ago the said that 20 years ago the finish attributed the insider press became very upset about a campaign of guilty by innuendo and he wondered why fact that the press plane rare-

"I don't think you can get that man down," Harlow said. In another reference to Mills, Harlow termed his conduct "un-Mills-like." Mills has long been regarded by the White House as more sympathetic to the President's lems than many other Democrats in Congress.

The committee, at Mr. Nixon's request, is now consider-ing the issue of whether the

for his prediction that Presiductions for a gift of some of dent Nixon will resign when the full story of his income tax deductions becomes known.

Harlow also said during the interview that he will be leaving his White House job "as soon as I can reasonably do so—and it won't be very long." It has long been known that Harlow is anxious to leave the government and return to a job in private life.

The President's arrival at Andrews after a four-day stay at Key Biscayne was marked by an unusual incident.

by an unusual incident.

The press plane carrying
White House reporters arrived about 25 minutes before anything to come out of Watergate so far.

Speaking in Little Rock, Mills said, "I have talked to some key Republican members of Congress who say that if [Mr. Nixon] is still in office by the month of June they will ask him to resign."

Mr. Nixon, and the reporters were told that they would be taken out to the runway to greet the returning President. However, when they attempted to enter the gate leading to the runway they were barred from doing so by Secret Service agents despite the fact that ask him to resign." ice agents despite the fact that the customary area had alare dissatisfied with the President's handling of his tax returns," Mills added.

Talking to report your art the fact that the customary area had already been roped off in which they were to watch the President's arrival.

Talking to reporters on the presidential plane en route from Homestead Air Force Base in Florida to Andrews Air Force Base, Harlow said that if Mills has some facts on which to base his statement he should make them known. Harlow accused the Arkan-sas congressman of engaging way during this 10-minute.

A Secret Service agent who identified himself as "Egan" said that reporters could not be allowed into the roped-off area because a "10-minute that no one except the commanding general of the base could be allowed on the runsas congressman of engaging way during this 10-minute.

the press was not upset about ly arrives at Andrews before the Mills' statement. Harlow, a onetime aide to President Eisenhower who has long been a political figure in Washington, praised President Mixon as the strongest man he had seen in public service and said that the President is "feeling fine."

"I don't think you can get the President does. This is a frequent incident at Homestead and other bases, but White House officials said that security officers at Andrews were not aware that they were supposed to admit reporters to the roped-off area.