SENATE DEBATES CAMPAIGN FUND

Bill for Financing by Public Faces Many Obstacles NYTIMES MAR 27 1974

In December the Senate was unable to muster a two-thirds vote to close debate on the public financing proposal, whic a majroity of the Senate had voted to attach to a bill extending the Federal debt ceiling. ing.

There appeared to be no asit faces opposition in the House, gations. where many members are re-

NYTIMES MAR 2.7 1977

By RICHARD L. MADDEN

Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, March 26—
Despite the double threat of a filibuster and a Presidential veto, the Senate began today what is ecpected to be a protracted debate over a major relection reform bill that would finance the 1976 Presidential and Congressional campaigns with public funds.

The opening round of In addition, President Nixon has denounced public finance ing of campaigns as "a raid on the public treasury" and is expected to veto any such bill. "We may not eradicate all future Watergates, but certainly we will discourage the perpetuation of a climate in which power is abused by the clever at the expense of the unwary," Senator Claiborne Pell, Democrator Pell, Persident Nixon has denounced public finance ing of campaigns as "a raid on the public treasury" and is expected to veto any such bill. "We may not eradicate all future Watergates, but certain-power is abused by the clever at the expense of the unwary," Senator Claiborne Pell, Democrator Pell, Democrator Pell, Democrator Pell, Democrator Pell, Persident Nixon has denounced public finance ing of campaigns as "a raid on the public treasury" and is expected to veto any such bill. "We may not eradicate all future Watergates, but certain-power is abused by the clever at the expense of the unwary," Senator Claiborne Pell, Democrator Pell, Persident Nixon has denounced public finance. and 1976 Presidential and Congressional campaigns with public funds.

The opening round of speeches was a reply of ones last December with Senator James B. Allen, an Alabama Democrat who blocked a similar proposal them with a successful filibuster, watching every move of the bill's supporters and waiting to offer a stack of amendments.

"I think it will be discussed at length," the soft-spoken Mr. Allen said of the bill.

"I hear there's going to be affilibuster of sorts," the majority leader, Mike Mansfield, Democrat of Montana, told reporters. He declined to say when an attempt would be made to shut off debate.

Opposition in House

In December the Senate manable to muster on about $24-million for President; about surances that the Senate could was not a proper solution to off did not produce enough shut off debate this time. Even campaign abuses brought to revenue. if the Senate approved the bill, light in the Watergate investi- Under where many members are reluctant to make public campaign funds available to their opponents.

In addition, President Nixon has denounced public financing of campaigns as "a raid on the public treasury" and is expected to veto any such bill. "We may not eradicate all future Watergates, but certainly we will discourage the perpetuation of a climate in which was approved, 7 to 1, by the Senate Rules Committee Feb. 6, would create a sevenmember commission to administer the funds, which would be set:

Instead, Mr. Baker proposed full tax credits for political contributions of up to $50 by an individual and $100 for a couple, and Mr. Weicker proposed shortening Federal election campaigns to 60 days. The campaign-financing bill, which was approved, 7 to 1, by the Senate Rules Committee Feb. 6, would create a sevenmember commission to administer the funds, which would be set:

For general elections and the following overall campaign spending limits all campaign spending limits all campaign spending limits all campaign spending limits would be set:

For general elections and the following overall campaign spending limits all campaign spending limits all campaign spending limits would be set:

For general elections and the following overall campaign spending limits all campaign spending limits all campaign spending limits are campaign spending limits and the following overall campaign spending limits are campaign spending limits and the following overall campaign spending limits are campaign spending limits a the bill, individual contributions could not exceed Instead, Mr. Baker proposed $3,000 each to a candidate in