PROVIDENCE, R.I., May 12

(AP)—The Providence Sunday Journal said in an editorial that President Nixon should resign as a last service to the nation.

Citing the "moral tone of Mr. Nixon's Administration as exemplified in the released transcripts of conversations in the Oval Office," the editorial said The Journal, a morning daily, and the Evening Bulletin, an afternoon newspaper published by the same company that owns The Journal, "must add their voice to the growing number of those who see Mr. Nixon's last best service to his country to be his resignation."

Both newspapers editorially supported Mr. Nixon's Presidential candidacy in 1960, 1968 and 1972.
