The Massachusetts Bar Association asked last week that Colson be disbarred. Colson, a Boston native, earned his original license to practice law in Massachusetts.

Colson's former law partner. Charles H. Morin, had asked the court to hold a hearing before deciding the issue so that Colson could appear "under oath to present the truth in the Ellsberg matter for the first time in any court in the United States."

Colson already has been disbarred in Washington, D.C., where he was convicted.
