HUGHES-CASE JURY REFUSES TO INDIC

JUL 3 0 1974 U.S. Had Redrawn Charges to Omit the Industrialist in Alleged Conspiracy

NYTimes By WALLACE TURNER

Special to The New York Times LAS VEGAS, Nev., July 29-A Federal grand jury refused today to vote an indictment that was specially drawn by Department of Justice officials in Washington with the intention of excluding Howard R. Hughes, the reclusive industrialist, from a list of defendants.

The local United States Attorney, who had objected to leaving Mr. Hughes off the indictment, was not allowed by his superiors in the Justice Department to present the redrawn charges to the grand jury.

While the language of the indictment was not known, its general purpose was to supplant one voted last Dec. 31 and subsequently dismissed by a judge as having been faultily executed.

Mr. Hughes and a group of his employes and associates were all named as co-conspirators in the earlier indictment. indictment turned down today was offered to the same grand jury.

Continued on Page 22, Column 4

Continued From Page I, Col. 5

Farther Evidence Hinted

United States Attorney V. DeVoe Heaton would not say whether further consideration would be given again tomorrow, when time for such consideration expires.

A spokesman for the Department of Justice said in a telephone interview from Washington that the department would make no comment until the matter was resolved. The spokesman hinted that further evidence would be presented to evidence would be presented to the grand jury tomorrow.

It was not known who were listed as potential defendants on the indictment the jury rejected today. Last year's list, in addition to Mr. Hughes, included Robert A. Maheu, once manager of the Hughes properties in Nevada, now estranged from Mr. Hughes; Chester C. Davis, chief counsel of the Summa Corporation, the Hughes holding company, and David B. Charnay, a film producer and long-time friend of Mr. Hughes. ducer and l Mr. Hughes.

Accused of Conspiracy

The earlier indictment had charged the five with having conspired to beat down the price of Air West airline stock before Mr. Hughes bought the company, and with having coerced reluctant directors of the airline to agree to the sale. airline to agree to the sale.

The earlier indictment came after an investigation by the staff of the Securities and Exchange Commission into the Air West purchase, and resulted from complaints by stockhold-ers who felt they had been cheated.

Directors Balk, Then Relent In the fall of 1968 Mr. Hughes offered $22 a share for Air West, which would have meant a price of $90-million. The stockholders voted to accept, but the directors balked. On Dec. 31, when the stock had fallen sharply over several days, the directors agreed to the cale.

days, the directors agreed to the sale.

Stockholders eventually received $8 a share, with Mr. Hughes paying $41-million, not $89-million, for the airline.

The reindictment process has been awaited by those who have watched the relations between Mr. Hughes and the Niv. tween Mr. Hughes and the Nixon Administration.

Mr. Hughes's relationship with Mr. Nixon goes back more than two decades and involves election contributions of hundreds of thousands of dollars, loans to the President's brother, F. Donald Nixon, and the controversial transmittal of $100,000 in $100 bills from the Hughes coffers to the possession of Charles G. Rebozo, the President's friend.

President's friend.

The $100,000, which Mr. Rebozo said he had returned in the exact bills that were given to him, has been the object of investigation by the Internal Revenue Service, the Senate Watergate committee and the House Judiciary Committee.

formed sources there said Mr. Heaton was told that Lawrence Heaton had been removed from Silberman, Deputy Attorney handling the case, which was turned over to a member of his Petersen recommendation and staff, Dean Vernon.

Today, while the grand jury not be reindicted.
met with Mr. Vernon, Mr. Heaton was in his office working
It also appears, on other matters.

Mr. Heaton's office here have jury today, that the Justice De-

The Air West matter was left

Meets With Peters

Washington about a month ago, 1972, when he said he had dissources said, and talked there with eHnry L. Peterson, chief of the criminal division of the of the criminal division of the Department of Justice.

It appears that their conference was about the indictment that Mr. Heaton proposed to present. Sources said that it was somewhat like the first one and that Mr. Hughes was still a proposed defendant. But they said that other language had been changed to avoid the pitfalls of the first indictment, which also had been drawn with Justice Department help. A week or so after the meeting with Mr. Petersen, Mr. Heaton was notified that Mr. Petersen had recommended that Mr. Hughes be left out of the new indictment.

About 10 days ago Mr. ence was about the indictment had ordered that Mr. Hughes

Maheu Status Unknown

It also appears, from the fact that a new indictment was of-The Justice Department and fered and rejected by the grand refused to contribute informa-tion for news articles about the of the earlier defendants reindicted.

in Mr. Heaton's hands from Maheu's name was on the new last Jan. 30, when the first list. Mr. Maheu recently won a It was not known if Mr. indictment was dismissed by a Federal defamation suit tried in Federal judge in Reno, until Los Angeles, at which Mr. fairly recently. Hughes's lawyers failed to per-Meets With Peters suade a jury that Mr. Hughes Mr. Heaton was caled to spoke only the truth in January, Dispute on Reindictment There have been informal allegations that the money was used to upgrade the Nixon property at Key Biscayne, Fla., to buy jewelry for Mrs. Nixon and to cover other personal expenses. Mr. Rebozo denied all of these allegations.

Over the last week, it has become known in Washington that the Justice Department and Mr. Heaton were at loggerheads over the reindictment of Mr. Hughes. Last week in-There have been informal al-