

Albert Is Next in Line --Again

Washington

Carl Albert is the first speaker of the House to twice find himself next in line for succession to the presidency.

"I hope this is the last time," Albert said a little wearily at his informal daily news conference, also attended inconspicuously yesterday by Secret Service agents.

When Spiro T. Agnew resigned last November 10 as vice president, the succession law made Albert the official standby for the highest executive officer until Gerald R. Ford was nominated and confirmed as vice president.

At noon yesterday, while Albert was watching Ford take the oath of office as president, the mantle de-

Wax Nixon Is Waning

London

Madame Tussaud's wax museum removed Richard M. Nixon's figure from its grand hall of world statesmen yesterday and placed it in storage.

United Press

scended on him again.

How does it feel the second time around? Albert was asked.

"There is always a certain feeling of responsibility . . ." he replied. "I suppose you don't think of it as much as the first time. You get used to things"

Associated Press