

Lincoln Scholar Who Aided
Nixon Is Indicted for Lying

NYTimes AUG 18 1975

CHICAGO, Aug. 16 (AP)—
The president of the Chicago Public Library Board has been indicted on charges of lying to Internal Revenue Service agents in connection with Richard M. Nixon's historical papers.

Ralph J. Newman, a literary appraiser and Lincoln scholar, was hired by Mr. Nixon to appraise papers that the former President was donating to the United States Archives.

A one-count indictment was returned this week charging that Mr. Newman lied three times to I.R.S. investigators who questioned him on the Nixon papers in late 1973 in Chicago. Mr. Newman already is under indictment on charges of helping falsify Mr. Nixon's income tax returns.
