

CORRECTIONS

NOV 16 1976

An article in The Times last Saturday on the alleged looting of a teamsters union welfare fund could be read as implying that the Old Security Life Insurance Company was a defendant in a civil suit brought by the Securities and Exchange Commission. The suit charges that Old Security was used as a front for transferring union premiums to companies controlled by alleged conspirators, but it does not name Old Security as a defendant or ask that its assets be frozen.

•