Taiwan Assures U.S. on Kennedy Book

By JOHN W. FINNEY

Special to The New York Times
WASHINGTON, Dec. 23—
The United States has discussed with the Chinese Nation—
Embassy here, which voiced its concern over newspaper repaired by the Concern over newspaper reports that the manuscript might have found its way into the hands of publishing houses in Off the book as originally written by Mr. Manchester oncern over newspaper reports that the manuscript might have found its way into the hands of publishing houses in Taiwan. The embassy informed the department that it had recommended to its Government that Taiwan publishers be discouraged from using any such manuscript. Discussions were then held in Taipei between the two Governments.

A State Department spokesman said tonight that "the State Department's unusual the State Department is as interested as the United States Government to see that no actions are taken by Chinese publishers to in The United States has discouraged from using any such the manuscript. Discussions were then held in Taipei between the two Governments.

Mr. McCloskey seemed to rule out the possibility that the State Department's unusual step of discussing a book manuscript among potential ment was prompted by any of the participants in the control of privacy. A state Department is as interested as the United States Governments.

Senator Kennedy has been active in the legal efforts by Mrs. Kennedy is put the was settled out of court this week when Look magazine, which will print a four-part settle out of court this week when Look magazine, which will print a four-part settle out of court this week when Look magazine, which will print a four-part settle out of the book next month, agreed to revise some passages Mrs. Kennedy is still pending against Harper & Row, which plans to publish the book next April.

It has been suggested that in the distribution of the original manuscript among potential problems and publishers and purchasers of serial rights, some copies may have found their way into the hands of pirate book publishers in T the participants in the controversy. The participants in the controversy. The provention of the conterested parties here in the United States."

Robert J. McCloskey, State Department spokesman, confirmed that "discussions" about the manuscript had been held in recent days between members of the United States Embassy in Taipei and officials of the Chinese Nationalist Government. Mr. McCloskey was vague about the nature of the discussions, saying only that they dealt with "the manuscript." From a later statement issued by the State Department, however, it was apparent that the discussions of the manuscript might be published in Taiwan.

The participants in the controversy.

"So far as I am aware," he said, no request for State Department spokes partment intervention in Taipei had been received from Mrs. Kennedy, the publishers had been received from Mrs. Kennedy, the publishers had been received from Mrs. No Katzenbach Message

An aide to Under Secretary of State Nicholas deB. Katzenbach Message requesting the United States embassy in Taipei to raise the bassy in Taipei to raise the discussions, saying only that they dealt with the possibility that unauthorized porsibility that unauthorize

GERMAN DEFIANT ON BOOK CHANGES

Editor of Stern Vows to Run Original Manchester Text

By PHILIP SHABECOFF

BONN, Dec. 23 — The editorin-chief of West Germany's illustrated magazine Stern said today he would ignore demands by Look magazine and begin serializing the original test of "The Death of a President"

Henri Nannen, the editor, said by telephone that Look told him in a message yesterday that it was sending Stern revised proofs of the book about the assassination of President Kenlished and demanded that the original proofs of the book by William Manchester be des-

Mr. Namen added that he understood Look was threatening legal action to prevent Stern from publishing the controversial book.

Look agreed to delete portions of the text after Mrs. John F. Kennedy objected to the original version on the ground that it contained references that related to the personal life of herself or her chifdren.

Deleted Passages

Mr. Nannen said that as far as he knew the passages deleted by Look concerned relations be-by Look concerned relations be-tween the Kennedy family and President Johnson.

"Perhaps this will not be very pleasant for the political career of Robert Kennedy, but that cannot keep us from printing the historical record," he de-clared.

was sending Stern revised proofs of the book about the assassination of President Kennedy.

He said the message asserted that it was "imperative" that tonly the revised version be publication. I never read such a compelling book.

"If it hurt Mrs. Kennedy in any way I would naturally stop publication immediately. But I am convinced it is politics — Bobby's career — [that caused the objections to the book] and that is not our concern."

Claims Scapegoat Role

Mr. Nannen complained that Stern was being made the scape-goat in the controversy over publication of the original manuscript of "The Death of a President."

He said the Danish newspaper

He said the Danish newspaper Berlingske Tidende, which he said was planning to publish the full text, had also received a warning telegram from Look. He noted that the Look telegram also asked that no advertising that used pictures of living members of the Kennedy family be distributed.

Mr. Nannen said that he had first looked at the original text of Mr. Manchester's book in London and had paid $72,000 for the serialization rights, which he believes is the highest sum ever paid for a book by a sum ever paid for a book by German magazine.