Manchester Says Kennedy Guards Might Have Balked Assassin

Evasive action by Secret Service agents, who seemed immobilized during "five terrible seconds," might have saved President Kennedy from the second and fatal shot fired by Lee Harvey Oswald, according to William Manchester.

In the second installment of "The Death of a President," appearing in the current issue of Look magazine, Mr. Manchester, author of the book, chronicles what he describes as the reactions of the Secret Service and the aberrant and often hysterical conduct of ranking of-and the aberrant and often hysterical conduct of ranking officials in the first hour after the assassination.

Why, Mr. Manchester asks, were two middle-aged agents with slowing reflexes assigned to the posts closest to President Kennedy in the motorcade through Dallas on the day of the assassination, Nov. 22, 1963?

According to Mr. Transitional According to Mr.

According to Mr. Manchester, Presidential guards were not required to take standardized tests to measure reflexes. Yet such was the tension and long hours of their work, the agents regarded themselves as old at 40. And tradition dictated that the agents nearest the President should be senior men.

Thus the driver of the Presider, President was according to the president should be senior men.

senior men.

Thus the driver of the Presidential limousine was 54 years old, and the man who sat beside the driver was 48.

"They were, "the author contends" in a position to take evasive action after the first shot, but for five terrible seconds they were immobilized."

Finds Loyalty Divided

What Mr. Manchester calls outside Parkland Hospital in Dallas might have been avoided he says, had the Secret Service thrown up a security screen. But the agents were leaderless and confused, he says. Some stayed with the dead President; some apparently thought that their levelty is the says of Secret Service agents and attendants outside Parkland Hospital, and how she struggled with a nurse who tried to bar her from the operating room.

Accused in An Ad

Thospital in Dallas might have been avoided he says, had the specific particles agents and attendants outside Parkland Hospital, and how she struggled with a nurse who tried to bar her from the operating room.

Accused in An Ad

Thospital in Dallas might have been avoided he says, had the specific parkland Hospital, and how she struggled with a nurse who tried to bar her from the operating room.

Accused in An Ad

Thospital in Dallas might have been avoided he says, had the specific parkland Hospital, and how she struggled with a nurse who tried to bar her from the operating room.

Accused in An Ad

Thospital in Dallas might have been avoided he says, had the specific parkland Hospital, and how she struggled with a nurse who tried to bar her from the operating room.

Others reacted oddly, Mr. Manchester wrote, citing the Communist party of the United States.

General Clifton first telephoned the White House to ask that his wife and the wife of a Presidential aide, Kenneth O'Donnell, be reassured that their husbands were unharmed. Then he asked the White House operator to switch him to the National Security Council to inquire about the possibility of a plot against the United States.

"The general's order of principles was staggering," Mr. Manchester commented. His second installment also relates:

CUDBAIS, and made a secret deal with the vestigation of Oswald the Federal Bureau of Investigation was making, watched the President and Interview and Interview and Interview and Interview and Interview of the United States.

GHow, after reading the President the President the President that their husbands were unharmed. Then he asked the White House operator to switch him to the National Security Council to inquire about the possibility of a plot against the United States.

"The general's order of principles was staggering," Mr. Manchester commented. His second installment also related the President t Others reacted oddly, Mr.

Associated Press Henri Nannen

THow Mrs. John F. Kennedy made anguished attempts to con-ceal the mortal wounds of her husband from the eyes of Secret were leaderless and confused, he says. Some stayed with the dead President; some apparently thought that their loyalty belonged to the new President, Lyndon B. Johnson — "and the inevitable consequence was anarchy."

Accused in An Ad

Thou President Kennedy reacted hours before the assassina tion to a black-bordered advertisement in The Dallas News accusing him of responsibilty for the imprisonment, starvation and persecution of thousands of Cubans. tisement in The Dallas News accusing him of responsibilty for the imprisonment, starvation and persecution of thousands of Cubans, and hinting that he had made a secret deal with the Communist party of the United eral Bureau of Investigation

Hospital, Mr. Manchester says Oswald "take deliberately aim" that when the dying President for the fatal shot. arrived at the hospital, Mrs. Kennedy would not allow him to jor controversy—the site of the be lifted from the car and onto President's stretcher wrapped his head in the lining the autopsy X-rays and photoof a coat given her by a Secret graphs, he says he has talked Service agent. Inside, feeling there was a chance that the them. These three told him, Mr. Manchester says, that the first bullet "entered in the neck" of the President ating room.

Mr. Manchester also tells how J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, broke the news to Robert E. Kennedy is the Warren Commission reported the autopsy found the wound "near the base of the back of President Kennedy's neck."

Then he adds:

"A youth named Arnold Rowland, who knew guns, had been watching from below with his wife since 12:14 P.M. He saw Oswald silhouetted in the window, holding what appeared to be a high-powered rifle mounted with a telescopic sight. One of Oswald's hands was on the with a telescopic sight. One of Oswald's hands was on the stock; the other was on the stock; the other was on the barrel.

"A police officer stood 12 feet from the Rowlands, but it never occurred to Arnold to speak to him. Assuming that Oswald must be protecting the President, he said to his wife. 'Do you want to see a Secret Service agent?'

"'Where', she asked.

"'In that building there.'" had made a secret deal with the Communist party of the United States.

The Geral Bureau of Investigation was making, watched the Presidential motorcade go by, advertisement, the Presidential motorcade go by, advertisement, the Presidential motorcade go by, then stepped into a restaurant turned to his wife and said that "we're heading the shots"

Mr. Manchester revives a mawounds. until she had noting that he had not seen the President.

But the Warren Commission

the Federal Bureau of Investigation, broke the news to Robert F. Kennedy, the President's brother, in Washington.

Mr. Kennedy, then United States Attorney General, was at home in Virginia when Mr. Hoover reached him by telephone, and, the author says, heard the voice, "staccato, shrill, mechanical," say:

"I have news for you. The President's been shot."

At least four persons saw the shadowy figure of Oswald lurking in the window of the Depository Building just before the shooting, Mr. Manchester said. Then he adds:

"A youth named Arnold Row-

Mr. Manchester wrote that relations between Kennedy and Johnson partisans began to become abrasive soon after the assassination, and the schism had stayted among the Secret Service agents assassination, and the schism had started among the Secret Service agents.

"The loyalists, mourning John Kennedy, could not adjust to Lyndon Johnson," he wrote. "Realists accepted the succession, sometimes with astonishing alacrity."

One agent made the charge while President Kennedy was still alive, Mr. Manchester reported. He said that the agent, Emory Roberts, centain that the wounds were mortal, shouted to another agent:

"They got him. You and Bennett [another agent] take over Johnson as soon as we stop."

A spokesman for Look magazine said yesterday that lawyers were discussing action against The World Journal Tribune for abridgment of copyright.

The installment had been embargoed for release at 6 P. M. vesterday But the World Journal Journal Loyal Loyal Section 2011.

DYER

York Times that he would stay at a home owned by Gardner Cowles, the chairman of Cowles Communications.

Look Loses German Suit Special to The New York Times

Special to The New York Times

BONN, Jan. 23—A District
Civil Court in Hamburg refused today a request by Look magazine for an injunction against publication by a further uncut installments of West German magazine of "The Death of a President."

Both parties will be given a written substantiation for the decision later. A spokesman for Stern, the magazine, said tonight by telephone that this procedure usually takes about two weeks.

In requesting the injunction,

two weeks.

In requesting the injunction, Look contended that Stern had violated its contract by publishing its first installment before the publication, Embargo date of Jan. 15 Look said Stern had further violated the contract by using material Look had agreed to delete and by using advertising and promotion methods that Look says were not allowed under the contract.

were not allowed under the contract.

Henri Nanne, Stern's editor in chief, said this afternoop:

"We do not regard this judgment as one against the Kennedy family, but for the freedom of the press."

He has repeatedly said that the real reason for Look's injunction request was Stern's refusal to delete about 1,600 words that Look cut as a result of an out-of-court agreement with Mrs. John F. Kennedy. Stern has rebuffed appeals from Mrs. Kennedy and a delegate of the West German Bundestag to delete the material. Mr. Nannnen maintains that the material Mrs. Kennedy considers too personal to print is of political and historical importance.

A spokesman for the legal firm of Samuel S. Horeis, representing Look, declined comment on the court ruling. Look was ordered to pay $6,500 court costs. The American magazine has four weeks to appeal, a Stern spokesman said tonight.