Dear Mr. Dreyfus,

We are also old-fashioned enough to try and answer all the letters, not matter how inadequately. I can't say "especially the nice ones", because they all have been very kind, and there have been many - and they do help, for this is still pretty rough, despite the apparent success. It will take a monster of a success to just bring us back to the surface.

No, there is no other publisher. I am the publisher. In your area the distributor is Raymar, of Monrovia. The demand in San Francisco was created by Joe Dolan, who did a very fine thing, investing about three hours of long-distance charges in a two-hour telephone broadcast ten days ago. He has also interested other radio personalities. We had a phone call from Raymar yesterday ordering another 500 copies and indicating they expect to need a thousand more in the near future. That will mean we will have to go back to press, which makes me happy - if the printer, who has done all of this on credit for me, will extend the further credit for the next edition, for there has not yet been enough come in on this one to make an appreciable dent in the bill.

Apparently most of Raymar's first 500 went to San Francisco.

You'll find Tomlinson in Whitewash. I share your opinion of his importance and your implied respect for his integrity.

To further rekindle your respect for most of our people, we have without hesitation filled every order by return mail. Everyone pays promptly, with only one magazine of liberal reputation having asked us to send by air not having paid the high postage for their copies, as they said they would.

Thanks for your encouragement and anything you can do.

Sincerely,

Harold Weisberg
