

Lord Harlech Extends His Wish for Happiness

LONDON, Oct. 18 (UPI)—Lord Harlech, whom many considered most likely to become Mrs. John F. Kennedy's second husband, said today he hoped she would be happy with Aristotle Onassis. "Mrs. Kennedy has been a very close friend for over 14 years. I hope she will be very happy," he said in a statement.

Lord Harlech had been a friend of the President Kennedy since both were teenagers. He served as British Ambassador to the United States during President Kennedy's term and became one of the Kennedy family's closest friends. Before succeeding to his father's title, Lord Harlech was known as Sir David Ormsby-Gore.

Following the President's assassination, Lord Harlech, a widower, accompanied Mrs. Kennedy to various functions
