

Kennedy Grew in Politics From Tough

THE KENNEDY BROTHERS: Robert, then Attorney General, is flanked by John, the President, and Edward, now a Senator from Massachusetts, in this photograph taken at the White House in 1962. A fourth Kennedy brother, Joseph, Jr., was killed while serving in the Navy in 1944. Robert also had five sisters. He once said: "I was the seventh of nine children. And where you come from that far down, you have to struggle to survive."

Associated Press

TIMES, FRIDAY, JUNE 7, 1968

C

19

Manager to Spokesman for the Anguished

THE SENATOR AND HIS FAMILY: Robert F. Kennedy and his wife, Ethel, far right, with nine of their 10 children in a photograph taken last month. From the left are: Matthew Maxwell, 3; Christopher George, 4; Mary

Kerry, 6; Michael Lemoyne, 10; Mary Courtney, 11; David Anthony, 12; Robert Francis, 15; Joseph Patrick, 14, and Kathleen Harrington, 16. Missing from photograph is the Kennedy's youngest child, Douglas Harriman, 14 months.

Associated Press

Associated Press

THE KENNEDY BROTHERS: Robert, then Attorney General, is flanked by John, the President, and Edward, now a Senator from Massachusetts, in this photograph taken at the White House in 1962. A fourth Kennedy

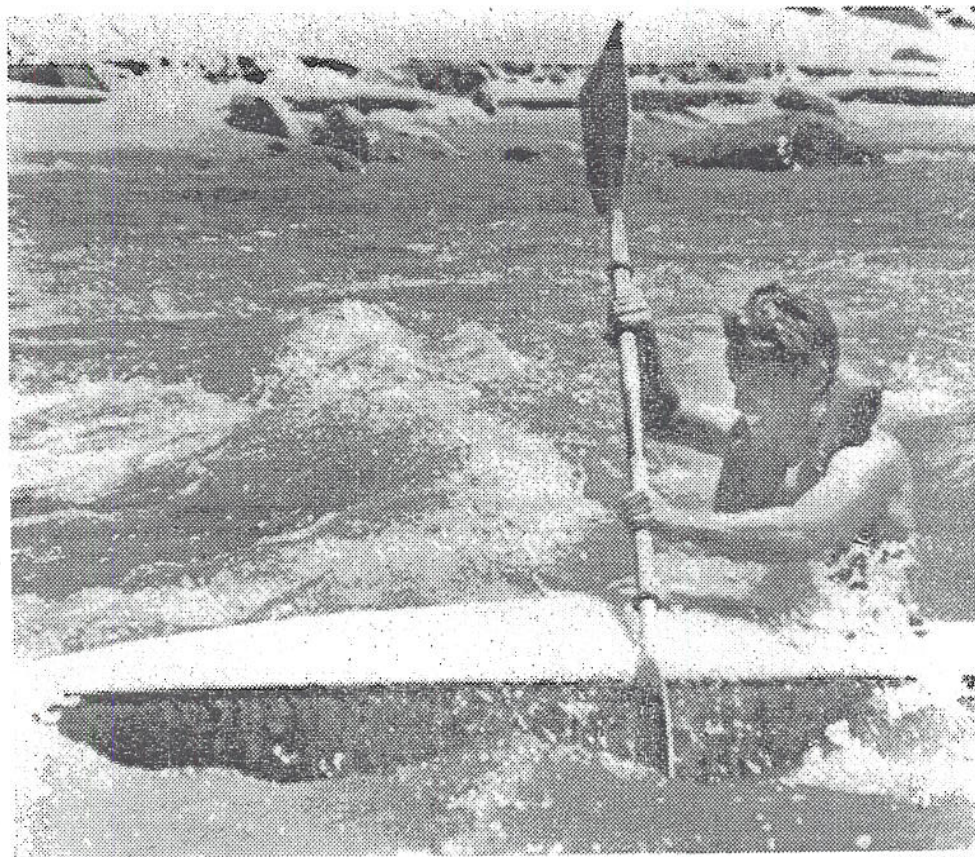

brother, Joseph, Jr., was killed while serving in the Navy in 1944. Robert also had five sisters. He once said: "I was the seventh of nine children. And where you come from that far down, you have to struggle to survive."

Associated Press

THE SENATOR AND HIS FAMILY: Robert F. Kennedy and his wife, Ethel, far right, with nine of their 10 children in a photograph taken last month. From the left are: Matthew Maxwell, 3; Christopher George, 4; Mary

Kerry, 6; Michael Lemoyne, 10; Mary Courtney, 11; David Anthony, 12; Robert Francis, 15; Joseph Patrick, 14, and Kathleen Harrington, 16. Missing from photograph is the Kennedy's youngest child, Douglas Harriman, 14 months.

SHOOTING THE RAPIDS: Mr. Kennedy in a kayak on the Green River in Utah in 1965. Associated Press
A man who played as hard as he worked, the Senator was a vigorous touch-football participant, a hardy skier, a pace-setting mountain climber and a swimmer who did not mind plunging into the cold Pacific surf on an Oregon beach during his primary campaign.

ON THE McCARTHY COMMITTEE: Mr. Kennedy in 1954, when he was serving as an assistant counsel to the Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations, headed by the late Joseph R. McCarthy, center, the controversial Republican Senator of Wisconsin. At left is Senator Stuart Symington, Democrat of Missouri, a member of the committee. United Press International

The New York Times

CAMPAIGNING: A wildly cheering crowd greeting Senator Kennedy in Sacramento during California primary contest.