

EDITORIAL

Number 59

Kathy Fullmer, 23, one of several girls questioned by police after the slaying of Senator Robert Kennedy as the possible "girl in the polka dot dress" has been found dead in a Los Angeles motel. Police said she apparently took an overdose of drugs.

We think the real girl in the polka dot dress died before Senator Kennedy died. Kathy Fullmer, however, may have seen something important in that hotel kitchen. Certainly there had to be at least two other persons involved in the killing who escaped from the room after their task had been accomplished.

[Complete.]