

Plain Talk From Lane

If John F. Kennedy had lived America would now be out Vietnam, or so Mark Lane told ARB this week sticking to a recent statement in the East Village other.

Lane, one of the foremost critics of the Warren report, also told BARB that he would like to see a "massive demonstration on the steps of the National Archives in Washington on Nov. 22."

This demonstration, on the third anniversary of Kennedy's death, would be aimed at forcing the archives to release the 600 "classified" files dealing with the assassination.
