BBC to Feature
Film on Kennedy
Assassination

London

The British Broadcasting Corp. (BBC) announced yesterday it would devote the entire evening of prime broadcast time this Sunday to a television inquiry into the doubts surrounding the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

It was the first time the BBC had ever set aside an entire evening for a single program.

Mark Lane's film of his book "Rush to Judgment" will be shown publicly here for the first time. Lane will appear live in the program, along with three other Americans.
