FREEPORT, Bahamas, Feb. 12 (AP) — Howard Hughes, who has reportedly been living on the top floor of a hotel here since 1973, left for Acapulco, Mexico, early Wednesday with 20 or 30 of his aides, the Freeport News said.

Perry Lieber, a spokesman for Hughes' Summa Corp., said in Las Vegas that he does not know whether the 70-year-old reclusive billionaire moved to Acapulco. If he has moved, Lieber said, Summa was not notified.

An anonymous tipster suggested to news media in New York on Wednesday night that Hughes might have moved to a hotel in Acapulco. But sources at the Acapulco Princess Hotel said that Hughes was not registered and they knew of no plans for his arrival.
