Washington, June 19 (AP)- The hearings are over and the findings are due within a fortnight, but the Warren commission kept its door open today for any belated disclosures on the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

If the presidential body headed by chief Justice Earl Warren meets its timetable, the public will know by June 30 all that the investigative resources of the government could uncover on the Dallas tragedy of last Nov. 22.

President Johnson will receive a report totalling more than 500 pages, supported by transcripts of testimony which are said to rival in bulk the findings of the Pearl Harbor commission after World War II.

There may be some surprises, commission sources have hinted. But there is no indication that the seven-month investigation has turned up any disclosures casting serious doubt on the FBI's original basic conclusions.

The FBI's report remains secret still, but it is known to indicate that Lee Harvey Oswald, the embittered ex-Marine marksman, conceived the slaying and executed it alone. Two days after the assassination, Oswald was shot to death in the Dallas jail by Jack Ruby, a Dallas nightclub operator.

It was learned, however, that the commission stands ready to receive any last minute information offered and may itself recall ~~xx~~ witnesses if members find any points which need clarifying during the writing of the report.

In addition, FBI director J. Edgar Hoover has predicted that investigations will continue "for years to come" even though the life of the Warren commission expires with the filing of its report.

The last of more than 400 witnesses was chief James J. Rowley of the U.S. Secret Service. He answered questions for 3½ hours yesterday. On leaving he revealed only that the atmosphere inside was "very pleasant."

Rowley has made no public statement whatsoever on the shooting which ended the life of the young president who personally picked him for his job.

It was believed that the commission, having already quizzed dozens of Rowley's agents and ballistics experts, asked the chief questions which went considerably beyond the adequacy of the precautions taken in Dallas and the behavior of the agents before, during and after the shooting.

Warren has indicated it is his view that the commission's assignment includes discretionary power to propose any changes or improvements it considers needed in the procedures for protecting the president and his family.

Some recommendations of that kind are expected, even though Secret Service procedures have been tightened rigorously since the assassination, and a considerably closer cooperation has been developed between the service and the FBI.

FBI Chief Hoover, a witness last month, lauded the depth and exhaustiveness of the commission's work and told newsmen the FBI has sent Warren "many thousands" of supplemental investigation reports since submitting its original findings.

These later investigations added "nothing new of substantial value" in the case, he said -- a statement which amounted to a broad hint that no recent disclosures have deflected the finger of guilt from Oswald.

Other witnesses included Secretary of State Dean Rusk, and director John A. McCone of the Central Intelligence Agency, who presumably certified to the thoroughness of the probes made in this country and abroad by their agencies, in quest of any evidence of any conspiracy; Gov. John Connally of Texas, wounded by the same rifle that killed Kennedy; and Mrs. John F. Kennedy.

The time and place of the questioning of the slain president's widow have not been disclosed. But commission sources revealed weeks ago that she definitely was on the witness list.

Commission sources have declined to say whether President and Mrs. Johnson gave statements.

The key testimony linking Oswald to the crime apparently ~~came~~ was of his Russian-born widow, Marina, who was questioned ~~xxx~~ for four ~~xxxxxxxxxxxx~~ consecutive days in February through an interpreter, and was called back again last week.

Pretty Mrs. Oswald, 22, identified as Oswald's the Italian-made rifle found in a sniper's nest in the Texas School Book Depository where he worked, overlooking the route of the presidential motorcade.

She said Oswald had used previously the name of "A. Hidell," under which the rifle was bought by mail; had kept it at their home; and had told her he used it in April 1963 in an unsuccessful sniper attack on the conservative leader, former Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker.

Mrs. Oswald said she was convinced by "too much facts" that her husband, having become "abnormal" after his return from Russia in 1959, had committed the assassination.
