

I presume the enclosed ad for Last Man At Arlington is from Publishers' Weekly. It came today from Ed Williams. I copied it when I was copying from the originals of COUP and POST MORTEM was so long ago anticipated WG. The slight euphoria from writing fove years ago what is so relevant today and was not then recognized, added to the 4:30 start and the nearness of supper, leaves me limp, so I've stopped writing with the end of that chapter. A few comments before I get some air. N.O. downplay continued all day until GL's brave anger and disappointment at having ~~no~~ motorcade (CBS radio, Pierpoint 2 EST from SanClemente). The hourly and other newscasts I caught sometimes ignored entirely. So tired I forget the name, but post by-liner on N.O. threat story today is going to keep all unused wire copy. He also finds this a bit odd...Had a call from NYC today from ~~me~~ a friend of Paul Valentine, Robert Friedman. He is doing a piece on WG and Wallace, which I was glad to help, shares out beliefs and will tru in 2 weeks to follow Chicago leads (I gave him only those I can't and haven't, including possibility cash was Vesco's. (LF yesterday said on next week's day off he'll go to coroner's office for me. He called on threat.) more
