

It is slow and it is laborious, but little by little, if you have time to read the carbons I'm sending, I'm piecing the Hunt apparatus together. Jim is trying to check the Mexico City address out through published sources. Except for the street address, it coincides with Ogarrio's. I presume it is a well-developed, central-city place, so it may mean no more connection than a Radio City address, there can be that many offices. But with reason to believe that inderman was not a writer and knowing that he was available there when not in D.C., there is more. Unfortunately, the phone number I had is incomplete. It will not be easy to check that out, perhaps impossible. Do you know a dependable there? If Jim can't do this the only one I might ask is Cedric Belfrage. RW 12/7/73
