Dear Jim,

6/16/76

There are new King developments. Today's WxPost has a short AP story, I'm sure cut at the Post. It reports a two-day-old announcement by Dhaheen, head of the Office of Professional Responsibility.

If you have not seen a story is now includes the killing, I think for the first time in any public statement and other than the AG said in the initial announcement. Five lawyers expecting that examination to require three weeks.

If you see anything it can be important.

I am more convinced than ever that I'm forcing every move they make, improbable as it may seem given the differences between our power.

This time I've forced them to broaden the inquiry because that is the only way they can hope to continue control with what is happening in court.

The timing goes that way from the first.

Any news story can be useful in court and in trying to anticipate what can develop.

Interesting the Post skipped a day and then used it.
