

Not important but I think you'll enjoy.

Two young college women are among those who have taken an interest in my work thru Floyd. They come from the same town, Erie, Pa., and room together. One has a nice new car. They come weekends when they can. They have been helping Floyd in p.r. work, etc. When I had to go to Detroit and decided to stay with Floyd instead of having him get up early to come for me they decided that his car, although just from the shop and fairly new, was not dependable enough for a cold start. So, they came to his house the night before. But there was little sleeping space available, which I did not at first realize. I used the rec room. When I went to bed about 2 with the party still going on I did not know how they'd sleep. When I got up early I found the sleeping on the sofa, feet to face. Well, they are home on the semester break. One called me excitedly last night. They are on both local TV stations today and will be in the one local paper, in support of a Congressional resolution to re-investigate. For two girls who have never done anything like this before, I think it is great and I'm proud. It tells me again that if one can point or lead these young people the right way they'll go on their own. And that they are willing to learn if guided, not pushed. HW 3/17/76
