

price tag at $10 million. Reagan said in April that the special election would only cost $2.5 million.

Reagan's plan would impose a gradually descending lid on the percentage of income that the state government could take in taxes. Reagan claims the state now eats up about 8.54 per cent and that would drop to slightly more than 7 per cent over the next 15 years.

Associated Press

Tricia's Pantsuit

Washington
President Nixon doesn't care for pantsuits on women, but his daughter Tricia wore a bright pink one Saturday when she accompanied him to Camp David, Md.

The President expressed his opinion on women's fashions a few weeks ago when he teased UPI White House reporter Helen Thomas for wearing a pantsuit during a picture-taking session in the Oval Office.

He advised Miss Thomas to change styles when she told him that many pantsuits cost as much as dresses.

United Press