Sally Harmony, former secretary to G. Gordon Liddy at the Committee for the Re-election of the President, has been named as an unindicted co-conspirator in the Watergate cover-up, it was learned yesterday.

Mrs. Harmony was included with her former boss in a secret list of 19 unindicted co-conspirators that Watergate special prosecutors produced Friday for defense lawyers preparing for the cover-up conspiracy trial this September.

Mrs. Harmony typed out transcripts of taped telephone conversations obtained from the Watergate bugging as well as reports from three infiltrators within the presidential campaign of Sen. George McGovern (D-S.C.) and put them in a file under the code name, "Gemstone."

After the bugging was discovered in June, 1972, and a bill for the "Gemstone" stationery arrived, she asked Nixon campaign deputy Jeb Stuart Magruder what to do with it and he told her to destroy it.

The list of the 19 unindicted co-conspirators in the cover-up case was pieced together from several sources. In addition to Mrs. Harmony, Liddy, and President Nixon himself, it includes:

- All the other original Watergate defendants, E. Howard Hunt, James W. McCord Jr., Bernard Barker, Virgilio Gonzales, Eugenio Martinez, and Frank A. Sturgis.
 - Howard Hunt's late wife Dorothy and Washington lawyer William O. Bittman, who represented Hunt at the first Watergate trial.
 - Herbert W. Kalmbach, the President's former personal lawyer; former White House special counsel Charles W. Colson, and former White House counsel John W. Dean III.
 - Former Nixon campaign deputies Magruder and Frederick C. LaRue and former reelection committee lawyer Paul O'Brien.
 - Former White House aide John J. Caulfield and White House undercover agent Anthony T. Ulascewicz.
- The six men facing trial in the cover-up case are H. R. (Bob) Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman, Gordon Strachan, John N. Mitchell, Robert C. Mardian and Kenneth Parkinson.
