

Mrs. Chotiner Replies to a Jack Anderson Column

The Jack Anderson column, of Feb. 15, featured in The Washington Post was brought to my attention by a friend, with the comment, "Isn't that Anderson ever going to let your husband alone?" When I looked at the column my first reaction was the same: why is it necessary now to rehash old stories and continue attacking his name?

However, upon a closer reading of the column I find that, in addition to the incredibly bad taste and total lack of compassion or human kindness towards his family, the statement pertaining to my husband is totally and completely fallacious.

My husband (nor Mr. Rebozo, as far as I know) never bought $21,000 worth of tickets for Senator Gurney's cock-

Over the years my husband often praised the work of Jack Anderson and Les Whitten. While antagonists, he respected, for the most part, their efforts at good investigative reporting. He saw the need for this type of reporting and often cooperated or assisted when asked by them for verification or confirmation of information.

Thus, you may understand my shock and dismay at the abuse of his name again less than two weeks after his funeral, and moreover, in a totally false statement.

MRS. MURRAY M. CHOTINER,
McLean.
