Pittsburgh DA Is Found Dead Hours Before Tax Indictment

LIGONIER, Pa., March 5 (UPI)-Robert W. Duggan, chief prosecutor for metropolitan Pittsburgh and husband of an heiress to the Mellon fortune, was found dead of an apparently self-inflicted shotgun wound today shortly before a federal grand jury indicted him for income tax fraud.

The indictment, returned in Pittsburgh, said the alleged source of Duggan's unreported income was "protection" payments collected from racketeers.

The federal indictment came after a year's investigation by U.S. and Pennsylvania authorities of Duggan's financial affairs, possible election scandals and alleged law-enforcement corruption in the Allegheny County district attorney's office at Pittsburgh.

Duggan, 48, wearing hunting clothes, was found dead about 75 feet from his summer house. home, Lochnoc Farm, a sethe Laurel Mountains.

ROBERT W. DUGGAN ... no note found wound caused by a double-barrelled 12-gauge shotgun found sentenced to six years in 7 to 10 feet from the body. Nichols said no notes were found on or near the body or in the him by Grasso.

cluded southwestern Pennsyl the federal grand jury in wealth has been estimated at vania estate in the foothills of Pittsburgh indicted him about $250 million, in a secret Ne-9:30 a.m. today on eight counts vada ceremony last Aug. 29. Westmoreland County Dis- of income tax fraud. The in- Mrs. Duggan's financial rectrict Attorney Albert M. Ni-dictment charged that Duggan ords subsequently were subchols said Duggan, who had failed to report more than poenaed by the government spent Monday night alone in $137,000 in income during in its investigation of her the house, died of a chest 1967, 1968, 1969 and 1970 and husband's financial affairs.

to pay $93,000 in additional taxes for the four years.

A state investigation also fe was under way into charges by the Pennsylvania Crime Commission that, among other things, Duggan failed to report $68,003 in campaign expenses in his successful 1971 bid for re-election to an unprecedented third term as Allegheny County district attornev.

In its report Jan. 30, the Crime Commission implied that $9,900 of Duggan's expenses might have been contributed through his former rackets squad chief by convicted numbers racketeer Anthony M. (Tony) Grosso.

The former rackets squad chief, Samuel G. Ferraro, was prison last November for failing to report $390,000 in protection payoffs allegedly given

Duggan married heiress Unaware of Duggan's death, Cordelia Scafe May, whose