PREFERS CONTINUANCE

Marcello Seeking Venue Shift Reversal

Attorneys for Carlos Marcello filed a motion in federal court today asking Judge Frederick J. R. Heebe to rescind his action yesterday granting Marcello a change of venue for his trial on a charge of assaulting an FBI agent.

Judge Heebe acted yesterday after citing recent publicity in Life Magazine connecting Marcello with racketeering in Louisiana and statements by Gov. John J. McKeithen suggesting that Marcello clear out of this area.

IN THEIR motion today, counsel for Marcello conceded that they had sought a change of venue, but they agreed that they actually preferred a four-or five-month continuance of the case here.

The motion states that the request for a change of venue had been prepared and filed with the court June 27, 1967, prior to the publication of two articles in the magazine concerning crime here and in other sections of the country.

The attorneys told the court that after assessing the nationwide impact from the articles, they felt Marcello could obtain a fairer trial in New Orleans than anywhere else in the United States.

"In New Orleans," the motion states, "the unreliable source of the articles—Aaron M. Kohn (managing director of the Metropolitan Crime Commission)—is known to the public. Outside the state of Louisiana, this fact is not known."

torneys not to pursue the reafter publication of the maga- ing this area. zine articles and for this reason the motion was not pressed yesterday.

motion read.

Marcello's attorneys said he to get rid of him. does not waive his constitutional "In this atmosphere, we right to be tried in this district seeking a continuance. where the crime is alleged to don't think we should court is lacking in authority to atmosphere at this time. transfer the case,

Jack Wasserman of Washing-ton, D. C.; Michael Maroun, more or less put the finger on Shreveport, and G. Wray Gill of Louisiana and was probably New Orleans.

When yesterday's hearing was "It sure did," he replied.

Defense counsel and U. S. At-to home.

"In addition, there were statetorney Louis LaCour were instructed by the court to submit three districts each, outside of Louisiana, in 10 days.
"I'll make a decision where to transfer the case within 30 days," said Judge Heebe, "though I reserve the right not to accept any of the districts you submit."

"No comment," said Mar-cello, when asked if the de-cision surprised him. He had "No comment," been seated alone when Wasserman began his argument.

WASSERMAN had expressed deep concern about the adverse publicity that has followed Marcello since his arrest in New York state Dec. 22, 1966 for taking part in an "alleged Mafia meeting."

Marcello was, in fact, "arrested as a material witness; there was no crime," he said.

"Then Mr. LaCour of the U.S. The motion further says that attorney's office said this Marcello had instructed his at- proved there was organized crime in the area; that Mr. quest for a change of venue Marcello was there represent-

"THIS WAS followed by an editorial in the local paper, and by the Life magazine article. "TT WAS intended that the Then this week Gov. McKeithen motion for a change of venue said present laws can't deal be abandoned, but counsel for with Mr. Marcello. The gover-Marcello did not express him- nor said also that Mr. Marcello self quite so forcefully," today's was engaged in legitimate enterprise but he still would like we should be have been committed and the obliged to try this case in the are not pressing for a change

The adverse pubof venue. licity, I feel, may continue for some time."

Wasserman said that "the adverse publicity has a way of coming before an election; it was true in New York state and there is an election coming here in Louisiana in November.

JUDGE HEEBE observed, "I don't believe that Mr. Marcello could get a fair trial here; I wouldn't attempt to say to what district the trial should be transafter citing recent publicity ferred, but certainly nowhere in the Eastern or Western Districts of Louisiana."

He added that the Life article read with feverish intensity in the state. "There was quite a the state. concluded, Wasserman was ask-bit of interest in the article in my house; we read what we are interested in-things close > ments by the governor. And I don't know that but what there won't be state government investigations because of the article.

> LaCour did not oppose the change of venue. "The gov-ernment stands ready to try this case in any district; it doesn't matter.

> Marcello is accused of striking at FBI agent Patrick J. Collins Jr. at New Orleans International Airport Sept. 30, 1966, on Marcello's return from New York.